Bergdahl Firestorm Hitting Up

The political firestorm over accused Army deserter Bow Bergdahl is now heating up. He has been charged by the military with desertion and misbehavior before the enemy and endangering the safety of a command. This guy was brought back to freedom, by the Obama White House in exchange for five Taliban killers held at Gitmo.

Many Republicans and even some Democrats think Obama's action taken last May was an illegal presidential act while the Obamacrats such as Jen Psaki, a spokesperson for U.S. Secretary of State John F. Kerry stated, "This was about bringing home an individual who served his country."

Former NY Governor George Patiki said it best, "Not only did we release five very high-up Taliban terrorists in exchange for a deserter, but the president then (had) his victory lap in the Rose Garden with his parents, (talking) about his honorable service and promoting him."

Self-Reporting Sometimes Doesn't Work

Every year, U.S. airline pilots must be screened for a number of medical issues that might compromise their ability to fly safely, from heart conditions to hearing loss, but not for psychological issues. The current system relies mostly on self-reporting and the so-called honor system. Examiners and Trainers are instructed to look for signs concerning a suspected emotional or psych issue present in a pilot, but often such issues can be successfully masked by those in some kind of distress

Latest news shows that the co-pilot reportedly suffered from severe depression and was in treatment at some point for it. What happened in this latest air crash would not have happened on a U.S. airline since no one is ever alone in the cock-

ARES

Ares is next in our long list of primary and secondary mythological deities. He was worshipped by the Greeks as their god of violence, brute force and the slaughter of war. As the offspring of Zeus and the goddess Hera, it is supposed that he inherited his quarrelsome temper from his mother. We are told that he delighted in nothing but war and bloodshed, and that this is what made him so hateful to the other gods. His favorite haunt was the land of those savage, cruel and rapacious early tribes of Thrace.

As the ideal of warlike heroes, Ares traveled around on foot or in a chariot drawn by beautiful horses, and was attended by his sister Eris, the goddess of strife. Eris was the greatest contributor to the discord that started the Trojan War. Eris is the one who threw a golden apple among the assembled goddesses. The apple was inscribed "For the fairest" and this is what started the quarrel between Hera, Athena and Aphrodite for the prize. They referred the matter to a shepherd named Paris, for a decision and of course, he awarded the golden apple to Aphrodite after she promised to give him the fairest woman in the land for his wife. The abduction of Helen (Helen of Troy) and the ten-year Trojan War soon followed.

Ares had always been the friend and lover of Aphrodite. This union produced Eros, Anteros, Deimos, Phobos and Harmonia, a brood or mixture that is hard to define. As Eros was the god of love, Anteros was the god of requited love, Deimos was the god of fear, Phobos, the god of fright, and Harmonia, the goddess of friendly relations. How would you like to sit down to dinner with that group every night? I would certainly be frightened to carry on any kind of love or harmonious relationship for fear that it would not be requited.

Ares was especially worshipped in Sparta, where young dogs were sacrificed to him, and in Athens, where the site of the Areopagus (Hill of Ares) was consecrated to him. His symbols were the spear and the flaming torch, and we note that before trumpets were introduced, the signal for battle was given by hurling a flaming torch at the enemy.

This god was usually represented as young, strong, handsome and with curly hair. At times he was shown bearded while at other times. clean shaven. One of his most famous statues is sometimes identified with Mars, his Roman counterpart. This sculpture was in the Ludovisi Museum (Italy). But in 1901 and 1902 that collection was added to the already rich Natural Museum of Rome, located in the old Baths of Diocletian. The sculptured piece shows the young god in a seated position, and it is called "Ares Resting" or "Mars Resting" depending upon whether the viewer is Greek or Italian.

Saint Isidore of Seville

by Bennett Molinari and Richard Molinari

Isidore was born about the year 560 in Cartagena, Spain, to a family of leaders and strong minds. His brothers Leander and Fulgentius served as bishops and his sister, Florentina, was abbess. His parents were members of an influential family who were instrumental in converting the Visigothic kings from Arianism to Catholicism.

Isidore was taught by his brother,

Leander, in monastery schools. Leander was very bright but also quite harsh as a teacher. Isidore realized that if he kept working at his studies, his seemingly small efforts would eventually pay off in great learning.

Isidore embraced education and made it his life's work. He became known as the greatest teacher in Spain.

He succeeded Leander as Bishop of Seville for 37 years. His love of learning made him promote the establishment of a seminary in every diocese of Spain. He didn't limit his own studies and didn't want others to as well. In a unique move, he made sure that all branches of knowledge including the arts and medicine were taught in seminaries. He set a model for representative government in Europe. He rejected autocratic decision-making and organized synods to discuss government of the Spanish Church.

His encyclopedia of knowledge, the Etymologies, was a popular textbook for nine centuries. He also wrote books on grammar, astronomy, geography, history, and biography as well as theology.

Isidore lived until almost 80. As he was dying, his house was filled with crowds of poor he was giving aid and alms to. One of his last acts was to give all his possessions to the poor.

He passed away on April 4, 636. Saint Isidore was Canonized by Pope Clement VIII in 1598. He is a Doctor of the Church, his feast day is celebrated on April 4th.

In Loving Memory

Rita, A. (Napoleone) Lucente June 19, 1928 - March 28, 2011 4th, Anniversary

The next place that I go will be peaceful and familiar as a sleepy summer Sunday and a sweet untroubled mind. I won't remember getting there. Somehow I'll just arrive. But I'll know I belong there and will feel much more alive than I have ever felt before. I will be absolutely free of things that I held onto that were holding onto me. I will travel empty-handed. There is not a single thing I have collected in my life that I would ever want to bring except ... the love of those who loved me, and the warmth of those who cared and the happiness and memories and the magic that we shared.

L'Anno Bello: A Year in Italian Folklore

The Joy and Folklore of an Italian Easter

by Ally Di Censo Symynkywicz

Few other days of the year capture the sense of unbridled joy quite like Easter does. Everything about this springtime holiday radiates with the sense of new life: the delicate gold-and-white daffodils peeking out from the ground, the robins hopping away to their nests, delicate bunnies appearing in greeting cards and home decorations. When I was little, Easter served as my introduction to spring. It was the day I got to wear frilly, flowery dresses, eat creamy Cadbury Eggs, and collect bright jellybeans. Now that I am older, I am keenly interested in Easter folklore and traditions. My Italian heritage has instilled in me a long lineage of Easter customs practiced by my ancestors. These customs reflect the spiritual importance of the holiday, while also reflecting the pleasures of springtime. By incorporating these traditions into my Easter celebrations, I infuse the holiday with memories of the past and breathe vitality into the symbolic acts repeated for generations. From wearing new clothes to baking special pies, many Italian Easter customs are laden with special meaning and symbolism. So let's delve into these customs and feast to the spring, Italian-style!

Easter in Italy, known as Pasqua, brims with a variety of folk traditions. My father fondly remembers one popular procession called la Madonna che Scappa in Piazza from his years growing up in the mountainous town of Sulmona, located in the Abruzzi region of central Italy. Literally translating to "The Madonna who runs in the plaza," this spectacle represents the Virgin Mary's joy upon learning that her son Jesus has been resurrected from the dead. The parade begins with marchers slowly walking down the main plaza of Sulmona, bearing a statue of the Virgin Mary draped in black. All of a sudden, the black robe is lifted, revealing a beautiful dress underneath, and the participants run at full speed with the statue to the local church. Fireworks pop and the crowd cheers as Mary reunites with Jesus. In Florence, a tradition known as il scoppio del carro, or "the explosion of the wagon," similarly makes crowds gasp with happiness: a wagon laden with fireworks bursts into a colorful display, with the brilliant hues of so many spring flowers. This love for spring and rebirth is relevant in smaller and quainter Italian customs as well. An Italian superstition declares that everyone must wear at least one new article of clothing on Easter. This superstition stems from the fact that it was once frowned upon to buy new clothes during the penitential time of Lent, and Easter offered the exciting opportunity to step out with new frocks. My family and I always wear new clothes on Easter, and this tradition reminds me of the new life blossoming around me during spring. Italians also celebrate Easter by coloring eggs, a symbol of rebirth. In short, Italian traditions reflect both the deep spirituality of the holiday and the exciting new season.

Of course, Easter in Italy also sports many unique and delicious foods. Easter pies, called la torta pasqualina, is a mainstay in many regions of Italy. Some areas fancy a savory pie stuffed with meat and cheese. However, other locales go for a dessert pie, which according to regional preference, is made with sweetened wheat berries, rice or ricotta cheese. I always make a homemade ricotta pie for Easter, flavored with semisweet chocolate chips and orange peel. The combination of ricotta, chocolate and orange is quintessentially Italian, and the pie makes a lovely, traditional finale to my family's big Easter meal. Easter breads are also popular throughout the Italian peninsula. The colomba pasquale, or Easter dove, is a thick cake flavored with citrus peel and almonds and baked in a dove-shaped pan. Other Italian Easter breads have full colorful eggs tucked within the dough, and multihued sprinkles scattered around them. It is impossible to avoid smiling when looking at such cheerful, vibrant bread! Lamb features heavily in many Italian Easter menus, being a meat that becomes primarily available during spring, but since I am a vegetarian, I much prefer looking at the

THINKING by Sal Giarratani

Baby Boomers Can Sometimes Feel so Lost Viewing what America has Become

"Your president may easily become King. Your Senate is so imperfectly constructed that your dearest rights may be sacrificed by what may be a small minority and a very small minority may continue forever unchangeably, this government although horribly defective. Where are your checks in this government?"

— Patrick Henry

Everyone knows the quote, "Give me liberty or give me death" by Patrick Henry from the altar of the Old South Meeting House, but very few are even aware of the quote at the beginning of this commentary.

Back in his day during the birth of America, Henry was an anti-Federalist and his side lost the battle that would have kept government power in the hands of the states. The Federalists, like George Washington, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison and company won and America ended up with a strong central government.

Growing up in the '50s and '60s, I always thought the right side of that political debate won the day. However, as I age, I am starting to feel much more libertarian and believe our federal government has grown too powerful and has, in-fact, weakened our democratic republic.

I am now starting to think that Patrick Henry was onto something important, but he was on the wrong side of history.

The America I was born into no longer exists. It vanished somewhere in the so-called passive '50s and the turbulent '60s. I am a baby boomer born in the aftermath of World War II. My generation thought we had the world by a string. Everything was just peachy.

However, like that old tune by Barry Manilow, most of us had a lot of rain in our lives. I grew up watching sappy TV shows like Hopalong Cassidy, Sky King or The Lone Ranger. Our heroes were perfect. There was right and there was wrong. It was clear to see. Of course as we age, we see that was Hollywood. Was life really that great back then? Yes, we know Lassie always saved the kid who fell into the well. Sky King, the Lone Ranger, Tonto and Zorro never lost a fight.

However, looking back, the world didn't look that simple. Sometimes the bad guys won, sometimes as we watched TV, we saw the brutality shown during the Civil Rights era. Where were our heroes stopping all this from happening?

When I started college, I was a liberal, but by the time I graduated I turned conservative, as did much of America during the violence of the '60s.

Today, as I view our endless battles in the Mid-East, I view President George W. Bush not that great, but I see President Obama as totally out of his league in the Oval Office. I have little faith or respect in the man. I have never said such a thing before about our president.

I see America moving off course full steam ahead. Things I fear can only get worse. We have a president who would rather use a pen and a phone than working together with the other two equal branches of our government. I think Patrick Henry is so right about Capi-

CENTRAL ARTERY RAMP PARCEL STUDY Wednesday, April 15, 2015 6-8 PM at the BRA (Boston City Hall, 9th Floor, BRA Board Room)

MassDOT is required to consider options for covering the open ramp portions of Central Artery/Tunnel Parcels 6, 12 and 18 along the Rose Kennedy Greenway, resulting from environmental commitments made as part of the Central Artery/Tunnel project.

MassDOT and BRA officials are continuing to study options to define potential cover alternatives for the ramp portals. At this next public meeting, staff from MassDOT and the BRA, along with their consultant team will present refined ramp parcel cover concepts that have been developed based on feedback received from four (4) prior public meetings including formal comments received after the most recent January 8th public meeting. We would like to invite interested parties to attend for a study update and a discussion on the next steps in the process.

About Taste of the North End

The Taste of the North End was founded by Donato and Nancy Frattaroli in 1993 as a benefit for Casa Monte Cassino. The Frattaroli's became aware of Casa Monte Cassino when a family from Italy came into their North End restaurant. The family was staying at the CMC while their four daughters received medical attention at Boston's Children's Hospital Boston. The Frattaroli's were touched by their story and inspired by the mission of the Casa; to provide a place to stay for impoverished families from around the world while their children receive serious medical attention in Boston. Over the next few weeks, as the Frattaroli's developed the idea for the Taste of the North End to raise funds to help Casa Monte Cassino provide its invaluable services.

The Frattaroli's, with the support of the North End restaurant community, held the First Annual Taste of the North End in the basement of St. John's School. That first year, guests were able to try dishes from fifteen North End eateries. The success of the event has been incredible. What started in St. John's moved to the local Coast Guard Base, the New England Aquarium, and finally to the DCR's Steriti Rink on Commercial Street. The Taste of the North End currently features over 35 restaurants, bakeries and distributors. Since its inception, the Taste of the North End has raised over $600,000 for Casa Monte Cassino and other local North End charities.

Hair Gone — Thanks to Sue Ismiel!

Building an empire isn't easy! However, with determination and need, Sue, an Australian housewife, has become an inspirational woman and innovative entrepreneur. She has developed her iconic Australian company, NAD'S, a gentle hair removal company, with an enviable global reputation. Starting this trend was Sue's middle daughter who was not able to find a hair remover gentle enough for her sensitive skin. So Mom went on to create NAD'S Hair Removal Gel. From ingredients she had in her own kitchen came a gentle, natural, and effective hair removal product. And so NAD'S was born!

After a successful run of infomercials in Australia, NAD'S was launched in 1998 in the U.S. and reached the pinnacle of success. She was inundated with orders, air freighting one 40-foot container to the U.S. every single day!

The phenomenal success of this one product allowed Sue and her three daughters to develop a range of innovative depilatory products.

EASTER

Before I begin my article I'd like to wish ALL my readers, pooch friends and their human companions, especially my dear friends that continue to subscribe to the Post-Gazette (which allows me to keep my job), a "Happy Easter.' This holiday is one of my favorites. All holidays are special, but a Happy Easter to Fr. Antonio and Fr. Claude, my two favorite priests that look forward to seeing my pooch face at Sunday Mass. For all men and women in the military that are fighting for us each and every day, think of them" and their families during this holiday and keep them in your prayers, that they will come home soon. To my special "Wabbits" at the Post-Gazette I wish you a Happy Easter and an enjoyable day with your family and friends.

I just like to add one little note: Easter Lilies, Tiger Lilies, Stargazer Lilies, Japanese Show Lilies, Rubrum Lilies and Day Lilies are toxic as well as other bulb plants such as Daffodils and Hyacinths. Just keep this in mind for the safety of your pet. That's all for now!

& The Classic Swing Orchestra I love theatre and have seen many great performances. I have seen many not so great works too, and some downright awful stuff, but I enjoy almost anything performed live on a stage. It also gives me pleasure to tell others about my experiences in the theatre, and by doing so, to inspire people who may not have had an interest in theatre to go and see what they are missing.

I have just returned from Hartford, where I have seen one of those very special performances, one that I wanted to never end. "The Pianist of Willesden Lane" is the true story of Lisa Jura, a 14-yearold Jewish girl living with her family in Vienna during the beginning of the Nazi occupation in 1938. Lisa is played by her real life daughter Mona Golabek in this oneactor production. Ms. Golabek is an internationally celebrated concert pianist who co-wrote a book about her mother's life entitled "The Children of Willesden Lane." Hershey Felder, remembered here in Boston for his superb performance in "George Gershwin Alone," which he also wrote, adapted the book for the stage and asked Mona Golabek to play her mother. Though not a trained actress, she takes command of the stage in this incredibly moving story in which she includes playing pieces on the piano while she, in the role of her mother. Though not a trained actress, she takes command of the stage in this incredibly moving story in which she includes playing pieces on the piano while she, in the role of her mother, tells the story of

he will no longer be able to give her lessons as it is now forbidden to teach Jews. Her father is no longer able to continue in his profession as a tailor and turns to gambling to support the family. On one terrible night, Krisatllnacht, he returns home bloody and beaten, but holding on to his winnings from a poker game. It is a single ticket for the Kindertransport, a program set up for Jewish children to be able to leave Austria and go to London. The Jura's have three daughters, but Lisa is the one chosen to go. At the train station her mother tells her, "Lisa, hold on to your music, it will be your best friend for life, and I will always love you." With those words she is off on her journey all alone.

Mona Golabek plays not only her mother, but many other major and minor characters in this performance. She tells of living with dozens of other Kindertransport children at a home in Willesden Lane in London. Of the friendships she makes, of the people who inspired and helped her, of the bombings, the destruction and rebuilding of the home, and how she had to continue her lessons without a teacher. She beautifully relates working as a seamstress by comparing it with music, "Each stitch was like another note of music ... ending in a beautiful tapestry." She does this while moving her hands along the piano keyboard to mimic the sewing machine, simply wonderful.

We are told of her playing the piano for the soldiers the night before D Day, and the French Resistance Officer she meets who would later become her husband. So much of this is sad, but it is also very uplifting to see how Lisa and all those with whom she is now sharing her life are able to survive and, more importantly, thrive amid the madness of war.

Ms Golabek is beyond outstanding in this performance. Every word, every note, comes from her heart. She is wonderful at the piano. and her acting skills are amazing as she moves among the many different characters and voices, but what is truly magnificent is how she tells her mother's story, and how we are brought into her life. There was no one in the audience who wasn't deeply moved by the story of Lisa Jura, and I am thankful to Mona Golabek for sharing her family and friends with us.

As her performance comes to an end, she takes time to tell the audience her story is dedicated "To every parent who had the courage to save their children by saying goodbye."

I strongly recommend you see The Pianist of Willesden Lane. I could watch it over and over. For those of you who have never been to the theatre, this is as good an introduction as you will ever have. For those of you who do go, you will not be disappointed.

GEICO and Good Sports Team Up for the North End Athletic Association

Local Youth to Receive More than $13,000 in New Sports Equipment and Apparel

This week, GEICO and Good Sports presented new baseball, basketball, soccer, and hockey equipment to the North End Athletic Association, a youth program focused on getting children of the North End active in a variety of sports throughout the year.

A community partnership between Good Sports, a local nonprofit that provides sporting goods to young athletes and insurance provider GEICO has helped bring over $130,000 in new equipment and resources to youth sports organizations in Massachusetts for the past five years.

"We're very pleased to be involved with Good Sports in order to provide the teams at North End Athletic Association with this equipment," said Rick Hoagland, GEICO regional vice president. "We know the importance youth athletics plays in a wellrounded education. It encourages teamwork and helps students make healthy lifestyle choices. It brings out all their leadership abilities too."

"Thanks to the generous donation from Good Sports and GEICO, the NEAA will be able to maintain a top quality programs and a most affordable fee to our youth," stated NEAA Coordinator John Romano. "This amazing donation will provide out program participants the best of the best and allow everyone to participate."

QUINCY GETTING HIP

Quincy is now hip and the place to call home. Gate Residential at Chestnut and Hancock Streets, is a new apartment building going up in Quincy Center. The Red Line is right there. I can see the 25-30 year old crowd liking this place. It is projected to be completed in April 2016. The building will have 169 apartments in a six-story building that comes with a cafe, fitness center, dog-washing services, media room, yoga studio and outdoor courtyard.

Boston 2030 is a government idea created by Mayor Marty Walsh on housing for the changing City of Boston. For more information, go to bit.ly/Boston2030, #Boston 2030 or BostonNeighbor.

SPEAKING OF BOSTON 2024

Apparently, the folks behind BOSTON 2024 seeking to bring the Olympics here have changed their tune. Now they support a statewide vote on the issue. They have even gone so far as to say that if the vote passes statewide, but fails in Boston, there will be no 2024 Olympic Games here.

They ran a great full-page advertisement in both Boston dailies. There was one line in the copy that made me laugh. It read, "We believe the Games will enhance our future and be a catalyst to create good-paying jobs, spur economic development, improve our infrastructure, increase affordable housing, provide educational opportunities for our young people and inspire the next genera-

Boston doesn't need the Olympics to be a great world-class city. It is what it is. Personally, I am not in favor of the Olympic games coming to Boston.

DUDLEY SQUARE GETTING HOT TOO

I grew up in Lower Roxbury in the '50s and '60s and I remember when the Dudley Station retail district offered an array of shopping choices. In its hevday, I was told it was even better. But during my youth it was still pretty good. We had the largest supermarket I ever saw until Super Stop & Shop came along years later in Blair's Foodland. I remember all the small markets, three fiveand-dime stores and several department stores too.

In recent years, the area had fallen on hard times, but recently has seen as a renaissance of sorts, where people are looking at the Dudley area again. I see a positive future here thanks to the rebirth of the old Ferdinand Building turned into the new Bruce Bolling Building.

The area around Dudley Station has a second chance to catch some of its past glory days. Today, the Dudley Station area flows down to Melnea Cass Boulevard. The hotter the area gets and the more desirable it becomes, you can see real estate values soaring and chasing out many people who survived all the lean years. It would be a disgrace if they were displaced by the affluence of the new Dudley Station area.

HEALING MASS FOR OFFICER MOYNIHAN

LEONARDO DA VINCI AND THE IDEA OF BEAUTY — April 15 through June 14, 2015. In an intimate exhibition featuring master drawings by Leonardo da Vinci and Michelangelo, the star is a study of an angel that the art historian Sir Kenneth Clark called "the most beautiful \dots in the world." Leonardo da Vinci's accomplishments in art and science find their common ground in his drawings, into which he poured the full fervor of his intelligence and creative powers. Throughout his career, Leonardo experimented with various types of drawings: scientific studies, grotesque caricatures of craggy faces, and the most beautiful faces of men and women that he could imagine. Many of Leonardo's most admired drawings are featured in this rich and varied selection of 29 sheets and a manuscript, opening on April 15, fittingly Leonardo's birthday. One revelation for visitors will be the rarely displayed Codex on Flight, one of Leonardo's most perceptive scientific explorations, with its nearly hidden self-portrait of Leonardo as a young man, a recent discovery. The exhibition features rare loans from a number of Italian public collections, including the Uffizi Museum in Florence, the Biblioteca Reale in Turin, and the Casa Buonarroti, the ancestral property of Michelangelo in Florence, which has lent eight drawings by that DIRTY DANCING - April 28 to May 10, 2015. The 1987 movie is an untouchable musical classic, and has sealed the sadly departed Patrick Swayze's place in the cult movie canon. A massive box office success at the time, it has spawned numerous imitators, a belated sequel and "nobody puts Baby in the corner" branded merchandise for toddlers. The stage version made its debut in 2004 in Australia. Adapted by the movie's original scribe Eleanor Bergstein, this North American touring production hews closely to the plot of the movie, packing in all its anthemic anthems (I Had the Time of My Life, Hungry Eyes) and cheesy oneliners with aplomb. It delivers everything the audiences can hope for lots of sexy dancing and rock 'n' roll. Taking on the unenviable task of replicating Swayze's charm (and hunky good looks) in this tour is Samuel Pergande (Cirque Du Soleil: La Nouba), while Jillian Mueller (American Idiot) is the Baby to his Johnny.

Weather report! Since February 1985, the average global temperature has been hotter every month than the 20th-century average for that month. That's 360 consecutive months of warmer-than-average global temperatures.

Health warning! Diet soda may not have the sugar and calories found in regular soft drinks, but people who drink it daily, often wind up with fatter stomachs. A study in the Journal of the American Geriatrics Society followed 749 people ages 65 and over for 9 years, and found that regular diet soda drinkers gained nearly 3 times as much belly fat as those who didn't touch the beverage. Expanding waistlines are particularly worrisome because belly fat is associated with an increased risk of chronic health issues, like heart disease and type 2 diabetes. Scientists are still puzzling over why diet sodas are associated with weight gain. It could be that people who switch to lowcalorie soda think that means they can "have an extra slice of pizza or a candy bar," says study lead Author Sharon Fowler, of the University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio. Those people might end up consuming more calories than if they'd just had a regular soda.

The great Tom Analetto of Medford says the best way to lose weight is to eat all you want of everything you don't like.

Singapore's Changi International Airport has been named the best airport in the world for the third year in a row by the World Airport Awards, which evaluates more than 400 airports around the globe. Changi's amenities include a butterfly garden, a rooftop pool, movie theaters, spas and even a four-story slide.

Here comes the bride! The average cost of a wedding in the U.S., excluding a honeymoon, climbed to $31,213 in 2014, up 16 percent from 2010. The bride's parents paid for 43 percent of the total cost on average, while the groom's parents contributed 12 percent.

According to Peter Beatrice, a young Georgia husband is mad at the minister who performed his marriage ceremony. The minister asked his bride. "Do you take this man for better, or probably worse?"

Proprio Stronzo claims the most difficult years of marriage are those following the wedding.

Steven Sebestyen says, "Some people never go to a wedding. They can't stand to see a man deprived of his human rights."

Steven's lovely wife Theresa claims a tenth wedding anniversary is difficult to celebrate. It's too soon to brag and too late to complain.

The compassionate Mother Superior Frances Fitzgerald, says, "People cry at weddings because they have been through it and know it's no laughing matter."

Interesting to note, college graduates account for only about 17 percent of marijuana use. About 76 percent is consumed by adults who never attended college or dropped out. "Most of the marijuana market is more Walmart than Whole Foods," says Carnegie Mellon University Professor Jonathan Caulkins, author of a new analysis of weed use.

As to be expected, 60% of Republicans think that Hillary Clinton's use of a personal email address while she was secretary of state is a "very serious problem." Carlo Scostumato says, "Get off of her back! She's a great brilliant individual!"

So who is the world's most powerful woman? In brief, German Chancellor Angela Merkel. Merkel has kept Germany wealthy and stable, as many of the countries around it struggle. Germany's strength has resulted in a steady increase in its standing and influence in the world.

Personally speaking, we have many memories of Germany. What we do have in possession is a document issued to us American soldiers occupying Germany during World War II. The document is quite interesting and emphasizes not to make friends with the Germans and more. We may release the rare document for pub-

America's great appetite for chicken has led industrial farms to breed even bigger fowl. In 1978, the typical full-grown broiler chicken weighed 4 pounds — today, the average bird weighs just over 9 pounds.

Speaking of chickens, do you know why we have white and brown eggs? Well, red hens lay brown eggs and white hens lay white eggs. We once heard New Englanders are the largest consumers of brown eggs only because of the Rhode Island red hens.

This just in! A prospective homebuyer needs to earn at least $48,600 a year to afford the mortgage on a typical house nationwide. That figure nearly triples if you live in San Francisco. To afford a median-priced property there, a buyer must earn at least $142,450; in New York City its $87,540; in Boston $80,050.

Brian Maixner has something to smile about. The diner waiter and single dad from Wichita, KS, has dealt with bad teeth since childhood, but with no insurance, he couldn't afford expensive dental work. At least until customer Fred Boettcher, a successful lawyer who had childhood dental problems of his own, offered to cover his care. Thanks to Boettcher's $25,000 "tip," the waiter had his rotten teeth pulled and replaced with a set of shiny dentures.

Time for some interesting facts! In 1909, Annette Kellerman, the Australian swimming star. appeared on a Boston beach wearing a figure-fitting jersey bathing suit, with sleeves shortened almost to her shoulders and trousers ending two inches above her knees. She was arrested for indecent exposure. Life expectancy at birth for Americans was 34.5 years for males and 36.5 for females when George Washington became President in 1789. Two hundred years ago: For kissing his wife in public on a Sunday after just returning from a three-year voyage, a Boston ship captain was made to sit two hours in stock for "lewd and unseemly behavior." In addition to silversmithing, Paul Revere practiced dentistry in colonial Boston. He learned the craft from a surgeon dentist and advertised himself as being prepared to fix loose false teeth and to clean Benvenuti! Given the fact that Pasqua (Easter) is right around the corner, I couldn't possibly fail to honor one of the most popular Italian Easter desserts: la Pastiera napoletana or simply, Pastiera. This unmistakable marvel of traditional Neapolitan confection is made from grano cotto (cooked durum wheat grains), ricotta, eggs, spices, raisins, candied fruit and its characteristic aroma and taste come from acqua di fiori d'arancio (orange blossom water) widely used in the Mediterranean. Traditionally in Naples la Pastiera (da Napoli) is prepared on Holy Thursday and eaten on Easter Sunday as the longer it rests, the better it tastes. The Pastiera connoisseurs store it at room temperature, never in the fridge, for not more than 4 days. Every family in Campania has its own secret recipe and it is a cherished tradition in Campania to end il pranzo di Pasqua (Easter lunch) with a slice of Pastiera along with the traditional Colomba and Uova di Pasqua.

PASTIERA NAPULETANA (serves 12)

FOR THE DOUGH:

2½ cups flour 3/4 cup sugar 2/3 cup butter, diced 3 egg yolks

Butter for greasing Powdered sugar FOR THE FILLING:

1 pound jar of cooked durum wheat grains for "Pastiera" 2 cups whole milk

1 cup candied fruit and raisins
2 Tsp cinnamon
2½ Tbsp orange blossom water
Grated zest of 1 lemon
¼ cup powdered sugar
1 pound whole milk ricotta
1 cup sugar

4 large eggs separated

Preparation: Put the wheat in a pan with the hot milk, half of the lemon zest, a pinch of cinnamon and 1 Tbsp sugar. Cook over medium heat until the milk has been completely absorbed. Beat the ricotta in a bowl until creamy then stir in the egg yolks, orange blossom water, candied fruit, raisins, the remaining cinnamon, sugar and lemon zest and finally, the wheat grain mixture. Place in the refrigerator while making the dough. To make the dough, combine (on a work surface or in a mixer) the flour, the sugar, the butter, 1 Tbsp cold water and the egg yolks. Work to form a dough. Leave to rest in a refrigerator for 1 hour. When ready to assemble, beat the egg whites until stiff and incorporate them into the wheat filling. Grease a 12 inch diameter spring-form cake pan with butter, roll out 34 of the dough into a circle and place in the pan covering the base and the sides up to the top edge. Pour the filling into the cake pan and cover with strips of the remaining dough to make a lattice design. Brush with egg wash and bake in a pre-heated 350 °F oven for about 1 hour until golden. Leave the Pastiera to cool on a wired rack, sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve at room temperature. Buona Pasqua!

PASTIERA NAPULETANA (serve 12)

PER LA PASTA:

300 g di farina 150 g di zucchero 150 g di burro 3 tuorli Burro per ungere la tortiera zucchero a velo

PER IL RIPIENO:450 g di grano cotto
500 ml di latte intero
150 g di canditi e uvetta

2 cucchiaini di canella in polvere
40 ml di acqua di fiori d'arancio
La buccia grattugiata di un limone
30 g di zucchero a velo
450 g di ricotta
200 g di zucchero
4 uova (separa i tuorli dagli albumi)

Preparazione: Metti il grano in un tegame con il latte caldo, la buccia grattugiata di mezzo limone, un pizzico di canella, un cucchiaio di zucchero e cuoci a fuoco medio fino a totale assorbimento del latte. In una terrina lavora la ricotta fino ad ottenere una consistenza cremosa quindi aggiungi i tuorli, l'acqua di fiori d'arancio, i canditi, l'uvetta, la restante cannella, lo zucchero, la buccia grattugiata dell'altra meta' del limone ed infine la mistura di grano cotto. Refrigera. Per la pasta combina (su una superficie da lavoro o in un mixer) la farina, lo zucchero, il burro ed i tuorli. Lavora fino a formare una pasta uniforme che farai riposare in frigo per 1 ora. Prepara la Pastiera incorporando alla terrina con il ripieno di grano cotto gli albumi montati a neve ferma. Ungi con del burro una teglia da forno a cerchio mobile di diametro di 28 cm, stendi $\bar{\,}^{3}\!\!/_{4}$ di pasta fino a formare un disco che ricopra i lati della teglia quasi completamente nel senso dell'altezza. Versaci il ripieno e decora la superficie con delle losanghe di pasta come come fosse una crostata. Spennella con dell' uovo sbattuto ed inforna in forno preriscaldato a 350 °F per circa 1 ora fino a completa doratura. Lascia raffreddare la pastiera su una griglia, spolvera con dello zucchero a velo e servi a temperatura ambiente. Buona Pasqua!

Nanna & Babbononno

by John Christoforo

A Nostalgic Remembrance

in a day or two and there are a lot of preparations necessary to celebrate this Chris-First of all, the prelude to Easter Sunday is Palm Sunday. On this day, Christians go to Mass or services and receive palms which represent the palms tossed beneath the feet of Jesus as he either rode or walked into Jerusalem. In Italian families of old, this meant that as you gathered at Nonno and Nonna's home, before you sat down to the traditional Sunday dinner, palms were given or swapped, accompanied by hugs, kisses, salutations and for us kids, money from our grandparents.

On the following Sunday, especially in Italian neighborhoods, the tradition was to dress in new Easter outfits and head to Mass and later return to the home of the grandparents for the traditional holiday dinner. In my case, it was a new suit, shirt, tie, shoes and a walk from Eutaw Street, down the corner of Brooks and Paris Streets where the Sacred Heart Church is located. Everyone in East Boston would be decked out in their Easter finest and as people passed us kids on our way to Mass, they would wish us a Happy Easter in either English or Italian.

After the children's Mass, I would stop in to see Nanna and Babbononno for a few minutes. Nanna, knowing I had received Communion, would have something for me to eat. Back then, going to Communion meant no eating for 12 hours before receiving the sacrament. On Easter Sunday morning, my breakfast consisted of samples of things Nanna was cooking for family dinner. Of course, Babbononno would comment Fleet Street in Boston's hison the way I was dressed and would have a dollar or two for me to Christen the pants pocket of my new suit with. I would return home, walking Summa's on this Sunday celup the Brooks Street hill and ebration. Lodge president and again give and receive the first lady, Dean Saluti and Easter salutation from people Margie Cahn, always host a along the way. Later, along group of lodge members and with my folks, we would head friends who joined in to celback to Nanna and Babbo- ebrate by sampling the multinonno's for the traditional dinner.

bottles of rum, brandy, whis- dishes beginning with orange key and Zi'Antonio's best slices with finocchio and homemade red wine sitting on the kitchen table; along with olives, pieces of finocchio (anise celery), assorted cheeses and cold cuts, a few different types of peppers and cut up pieces from a round loaf of bread. This was the antipasto station, if you will, a whet-your-whistle course that prepared you for what was coming. When we struffoli, fruit cup and coffee. all sat down, we began with The only problem is, four or Nanna's escarole soup with five days later you will get tiny meatballs. This was followed by ravioli made from scratch including the dough. Lodge guests are not Italian This course was accompa- and either Dean, I or nied and followed by the Barbara's wait staff will have meats that gave Nanna's to explain what each dish

Easter will be with us gravy such a great taste. Let's contained. Even some of the see, there were meatballs, chunks of pork, veal, chicken and cut-up sirloin. (If I could tian holiday, Italian style. find a piece of pork skin, I would be in heaven.) Then came the vegetables, stuffed artichokes, green beans in olive oil and garlic, mixed vegetables, and later the salad. Desert consisted of fruits, nuts and coffee. Later, after everyone had digested, out came the pastries, cookies and Italian candies. All of this was accompanied by my great uncle's best red and white wines (mostly red) and Italian after dinner drinks. When everyone left, Nanna would have doggie bags of leftovers for everyone to take. Saying goodbye would take at least a half hour considering the hugs, kisses, saying thank you in Italian and English and then maybe an encore if you will. The encore and its length would depend on how many glasses of wine were consumed before, during and after the Easter feast. That is the way it was, and to some extent, the way it will be for Brooks Street hill to the us. We may be joining forces with my cousin, Ralph Pepe, and with a few additions of American food, celebrate in the traditions that were taught to us two generations ago by his grandparents and Nanna and Babbononno.

There is another tradition that takes place during Lent, St. Joseph's Day. In Sicily, St. Joseph (San Giuseppe) is the Patron Saint. According to legend, during a drought, he brought rain. He prevented famine on the island and spared many lives during times of plague. As a thank you gesture to their prayers, Sicilians prepared banquets for their patron saint. Locally, this tradition of hosting a banquet is undertaken by Barbara Summa, the owner of La Summa's on toric North End.

In the past, the Renaissance Lodge of the Suns of Italy held court at La course dinner that is symbolic of the day. Barbara goes over-Babbononno would have board with her traditional olives, rappi and beans, calamari salad, frittata of pepper, eggs and potato, calamari salad, stuffed artichokes, pasta sardi (with sautéed sardines), pasta with bread crumbs, orange peel and cinnamon to represent sawdust, (as St. Joseph was a carpenter by trade), fried smelts, fried ravioli, fried dough, hungry again.

Many of the Renaissance guests who are Italian American had never celebrated a Sicilian holiday before and are as intrigued as the non-Italians. When the new comers asked me my opinion, I cheerfully tell them that La Summa's is one of only a few places I eat at in the North End. I'm fussy and admit it. Many of the events I'm involved with take place at La Summa's, especially if I'm responsible for organizing them.

Well, by the time you read this column, it will be just about time for Easter Sunday. With sons John, Michael, John's wife, Beth and Michael's girl friend, Abby, We will all head to cousin Ralph Pepe's home and combine the families as we do on most holidays. It represents the extended family that Ralph and I grew up with and it keeps things going for another generation. So, from the Christoforo family to yours, "Buona Pasqua, Saluti, Aguri, and may GOD BLESS AMERICA."

pit at any time. Since this tragedy, that protocol is now going worldwide.

Bad Policies Going Viral

In Yemen, Saudi Arabia is bombing Iranian-backed forces. In Iraq, the United States is now the air force for the Iranians trying to kick out ISIS from there. Mideast Muslims are roaming the area and the United States is looking more and more impotent.

President Jimmy Carter was quite inept, but President Obama is making the word "inept" sound good. Obama's priority appears to be the geopolitical decline of our nation in that part of the world, which is fast deteriorating into a terrorist-free-for-all.

Shotspotter Technology

The Boston Police Department has had the Shot-Spotter technology in use for years now and it has been very beneficial in catching more bad guys. Recently, down in the Big Apple, many civil liberties advocates have criticized this technology, saying it will be used to eavesdrop on passing conversations. Police Commissioner Billy Bratton told these critics to "get a life." We're not out there eavesdropping on public conversations. I've got enough to do without doing that."

Boston has been using them in crime-ridden neighborhoods for some time now and the system works for public safety reasons. In New York, this technology covers about 15square-miles in 17 precincts in neighborhoods plagued by gun violence. It gives law enforcement the ability to rapidly respond when shots are fired looking to recover ballistics evidence.

Brooklyn Woman Loves Rabbit

Lots of folks love eating rabbit. My cat "Nica" has it as her dry food. However, that is not what this news item is about. It seems a bunny-hoarding lady has just filed a law suit to get back her 237 rabbits seized by the city when they raided her backyard. She claims they didn't have a warrant. She says she loves her rabbits, but she was charged with being an ISIS-like torturer.

Black Votes Should Matter to GOP too

The U.S. Marines have a motto I have seen on many billboards of late, "For our nation ... For us all." The Republicans need to go Marines. Like the Marines, the Republican Party has a proud history too.

When you think about the struggle for civil rights in the '50s and '60s, it was the Republican Party leadership who took the lead in getting both the Civil Rights Acts of 1957 and 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965 possible. Without the GOP, the civil rights struggle would have struggled on for many more years.

Many of today's civil rights leaders seem to have forgotten the courage of President Lyndon Johnson for being the point guard on this issue. However, it wasn't him alone. The Republican Party worked with him while most southern Democrats, a.k.a. Dixiecrats who did all in their power to prevent racial justice through law in this country. Most civil rights leaders in the late '50s were Republicans. It wasn't until 1964 when Republicans put up Barry Goldwater that Democrats started getting the Black vote on a regular basis. In 1956 and again in 1960, both President Eisenhower and Vice President Richard Nixon received a healthy chunk of the socalled Black vote.

Since 1964, the Democrats get almost all of the Black votes because the Republicans seem to have seeded their historical vote to the other side.

Republican leaders need to go back to the future and show African-Americans, other minority groups and the working-class that the GOP supports their aspirations and needs. Making America a better place for all is not a partisan issue.

President George W. Bush made a dent in the Hispanic vote and if his brother Jeb runs, he will do likewise. The Republican Party must reach out to all communities of color and say we hear you and want to work with you to make your life better because all lives matter in America.

adorable lambs carved out of to enjoy the spring weather. Easter is truly one of the most special holidays of the year. In both its religious and symbolic forms, Easter honors the universal themes of rebirth, reawakening and rejuvenation. The name Easter, in fact, may derive from the Eostre, a Germanic goddess of spring. Spring, after all, represents the time of the year when Mother Earth jumps back into vitality after a long winter slumber, and such a blossoming of nature instills the desire of celebration into everyone. Religiously, Easter honors the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, and the accompanying implications of eternal life, redemption and renewed spirituality. Italian Easter customs contain all this symbolism within their folkloristic practices. Eggs and new clothes symbolize rebirth, the ingredients of the Easter meal honor the foods of spring, and the processions prevalent throughout the country reflect the people's hope and devotion. Through this holiday, we are celebrating the optimism and power of rebirth that dwells inside us, as sure as the sun illuminates a spring day.

Happy Easter! Buona Pasqua!

Regardless of how things go over the final few games, the B's date with destiny may well be determined away from every line coming at them, the friendly crowds at the Garden. That's because the B's conclude the season with three road games - against the Capitals (April 8th), the Panthers (April 9th) and Tampa Bay (April 11th). When the Bruins played those three teams on the road back in March, they lost all three games. If such an eventuality were to occur again, it could well mean the end of hockey at the Garden until next October.

But as March became April, this seemed to be a somewhat different Bruins team, one that restored the gritty, physical nature of the game to its repertoire as this extended exam neared its final hour.

Indeed, when asked by a media member if he was hoping other teams would knock off the other contenders for the final playoff berth, Coach Julien replied that he wanted the Bruins to win. "We're not asking anybody else to do our dirty work right now. It's up to us to play and win our games."

That it is. And if they do so they will make the playoffs. If not, a six-month offseason becomes a reality.

With respect to this provision, bidders are urged to familiarize themselves thoroughly with the Bidding Documents. Strict compliance with the pertinent procedures will be required for a bidder to be deemed responsive and eligible. This Contract is also subject to Affirmative Action requirements of the Massachusetts Port Authority contained in Article 84 of the General Requirements and Covenants, and to the Secretary of Labor's Requirement for Affirmative Action to Ensure Equal Opportunity and the Standard Federal Equal Opportunity Construction Contract Specifications (Executive Order 11246).

The General Contractor is required to submit a Certification of Non-Segregated Facilities prior to award of the Contract, and to notify prospective subcontractors of the requirement for such certification where the subcontract exceeds $10,000.

A Contractor having fifty (50) or more employees and his subcontractors having fifty (50) or more employees who may be awarded a subcontract of $50,000 or more will, within one hundred twenty (120) days from the contract commencement, be required to develop a written affirmative action compliance program for each of its establishments.

Compliance Reports - Within thirty (30) days of the award of this Contract the Contractor shall file a compliance report (Standard Form [SF 100]) if:

- The Contractor has not submitted a complete compliance report within twelve (12) months preceding the date of award, and
- The Contractor is within the definition of "employer" in Paragraph 2c(3) of the instructions

The contractor shall require the subcontractor on any first tier subcontracts, irrespective of the dollar amount, to file SF 100 within thirty (30) days after the award of the subcontracts, if the above two conditions apply. SF 100 will be furnished upon request. SF 100 is normally furnished Contractors annually, based on a mailing list currently maintained by the Joint Reporting Committee. In the event a contractor has not received the form, he may obtain it by writing to the following address:

tol Hill too. Our legislative branch and both parties are too busy fighting one another, rather than solving grave issues that need to be faced and resolved.

America keeps moving, in my eyes, in the wrong direction. I see little to hope in the coming months and years. America today is not the America I awoke into back in the maternity section of Boston City Hospital. We have few heroes today standing up for a strong America that is respected by our friends and feared by our enemies.

Who can be a mere bystander looking on helplessly as things go sour. I thought my generation born in the peace that followed the war would find a way to fight harder for a safer world and a democratic republic that clearly protected each and every one of us from our enemies, foreign and do-

We watched Dr. King get killed fighting for civil rights for all. We saw Bobby Kennedy fight for that newer world in which all could succeed. We now watch old wars turn into new wars led by leaders seemingly far too arrogant for their own good.

People ask if I am a conservative. Many think I am. However, I don't like getting tagged as anything. Depending on the issues, I can be what I wish to be. There is after all, not a liberal or conservative stance for me. I take the stand I feel is correct. Liberals think I am too conservative and I've been told by conservatives I sound like a liberal.

That tells me I am a real baby boomer who is not afraid to take a stand for my principles. I did when I was 20-something, and I still do.

It is time for more baby boomers to find their passion. Remember nothing is over until they start throwing dirt atop us.

With the start of baseball season, I thought I would share some photos that combine baseball and boxing. There were many great friendships that existed between boxers and baseball players as is evidenced by a number of these photos.

It is also a well-known fact that Rocky Marciano originally wanted to be a baseball player, and the great Jackie Robinson served for a time on the New York State Boxing Commission.

I hope you enjoy these pictures.

HOOPS and HOCKEY in the HUB

by Richard Preiss

As the NHL regular season winds down to less than a week with the Bruins' fate probably not to be decided until almost the very end, your faithful correspondent came to the realization that perhaps what he has seen on the ice the last couple of weeks he has seen before — but under different circumstances.

For as the number of games remaining wound down into the single digits, it occurred to me that perhaps what the Bruins have been doing is taking a form of entrance exam, one that measures various qualities and skills and, if successfully completed, opens the door to future opportunities.

The exam might be the last ten games or so of the regular season, a period of time where, for this year at least, everything is on the line for those plying their trade on Causeway Street. A successful completion of the challenge before them means that the Bruins will gain admission to the 2015 Stanley Cup Playoffs. Less than success means a mid-April departure from the NHL's second-season scene.

"We need to get a better nose for the net." offered Head Coach Claude Julien as a description of one way that the B's might tip the results in their favor. "I use that in the way of saying that we need better net-front presence. We need to stay there, we need to find those loose pucks and we need to drive to that area to score goals, especially five on five. Those are the things that you need. That going to the net makes it hard on opposing teams and we need a little bit more of that. If we can continue to do that, we'll score some goals."

As the days dwindled down to a precious few, the B's were certainly better than they were a week before when they were dislodged from the final wild card playoff berth by Ottawa for a few days, a spot that the B's had basically occupied for most of the 2015 portion of the schedule.

But just as one might not do well on some sections of a test but better on others, the B's regrouped and reclaimed their now familiar place, although their hold on the precious position was not as certain as one would like as this piece went to

The process of reclamation began with a three-game win streak over the Rangers, Carolina and Florida. If their winning ways continue, the B's will be playing in the Stanley Cup. If they don't, either Ottawa or Florida may well claim the final Eastern Conference playoff berth.

"It's important to stick with it, stay even-keeled, don't get too high or too low, just be focusing on the game, playing a good 60-minute game," stated B's defenseman Dennis Seidenberg as he thought ahead to those few upcoming contests left on the schedule. "It's just a matter of us going on the ice and performing at a consistent level. That's what's been missing the whole year. It's been a lot of ups and downs. You want to stop going the other way and start going forward."

And perhaps mentally, the playoffs have already started. Several of the players are already sporting playoff beards (an NHL tradition) and the do-or-die nature of the final few games has created a sense of immediacy consistent with playoff hockey.

"The whole team is kind of in that mindset right now," revealed Seidenberg. "We have to win hockey games. We're in that position where we have to play solid hockey and try to avoid being scored on a lot. We're trying everything to win hockey games."

And if this bunch of Bruins succeed in passing their exam, it will not be because of a few players, it will be because the entire team has bought in.

"I think our biggest asset is when we have all 20 guys going," explained B's forward Milan Lucic. "You know,
