118 Years of Continuous Publication

One hundred and eighteen years ago, an Italian immigrant who arrived in Boston when he was only 16 years old saw the realization of his fondest dreams, to establish an Italian language newspaper that would be the genuine voice of the increasing flow of Italians to the United States. The boy was James V. Donnaruma, the newspaper was LA GAZZETTA DEL MASSACHUSETTS which is now published in English as the POST-GAZETTE.

He remained at the helm of this well-known publication until his demise in 1953 at which time his son, Caesar, took over the reins of running the now famous national weekly newspaper located in the North End of Boston. Caesar was loyally assisted by an ingenious wife, Phyllis, who assumed the role of publisher in 1971, as one the nations first Italo-American women publishers. Upon Phyllis' death in October 1990, their daughter, Pamela, continued the tradition as the third generation publisher of the POST-GAZETTE.

The GAZZETTA, as it was properly called, was very short in financial means but had a large vision, to give its readers a better and wider understanding between two countries. The so-called Italian Colony, or "La Colonia," had to face a complexity of problems and the GAZZETTA had to understand the slow and hard transition of men who, in most cases, had been engaged in agriculture in the home country. Here, they were to work in construction, factories and restaurants, eventually emerging as small storekeepers and finally the professionals, heads of business enterprises and eventually to become industrial leaders, heads of state, people to be respected by others.

If America was to some a bitter disappointment, to more it remained a great adventure and excitement. There were new ways to be learned as well as new institutions. There were speculators and exploiters to be fought, a "padrone" system needed to be destroyed. There were churches to be built and above all, immigrants took advantage of America's free education while learning the process of citizenship. We devoted pages and pages to that very mission!

The GAZZETTA became, in a way, a sort of guide, so to speak, the go-between that brought American political life to the Italian immigrant. Many times our people were sent unknowingly to work in places subject to a strike and were therefore exposed to physical violence on the part of strikers ... in time, the situation changed as they learned more about the new land of opportunity.

The Italian immigrant was a hard worker, a thrifty man, a family man. He had pride. As a family their goal was to build a future in America. The GAZZETTA stressed these virtues. We began to publish an all-English section which became a real forum, discussing many problems, criticizing discriminating laws while advocating Americanization and responding to community needs such as the Red Cross appeals.

A typical Horatio Alger story could be repeated by thousands of immigrants and their American-born children who became an integral part of this great country, fighting in its wars and facing every national crisis. It would be impossible, space wise, to enumerate the many initiatives taken by our publication from its inception as "LA GAZZETTA" to its present-day format as the "POST-GAZETTE" in its 118 years of uninterrupted publication. We never missed an issue, even when the going was very hard.

The moral reward, over the years of hard work, came in many ways when American presidents, senators,

New York Daily News Front Page

This past Sunday, the NY Daily News ran a full front page photo showing Beyonce, Jay Z, Trayvon's mother and Al Sharpton with a headline stating "All 4 Tray." One time I liked the Daily News but nowadays, it is nothing more than seemingly a liberal rag. The best newspaper in New York without a doubt is the New York Post.

Rolling Stone is Dumb as a Rock

The Boston Herald last week ran a great "Dumb as a Rock" front page story on the Rolling Stone's "The Bomber" cover. The magazine seemingly gave Tsarnaev the rock star treatment. Kudos to all those businesses that are refusing to sell this issue of Rolling Stone.

DATE OF DEATH:

PLACE OF DEATH:

SPOUSE:

PRESIDENT:
March 4, 1877 -
March 4, 1881

C.E.O. nineteen was Rutherford B. Hayes
Attended Harvard College in his earlier days;
Then to Ohio to practice the law,
Business was so bad he wondered what for.
In the great Civil War, held a General's commission,
Then into politics with the Army's permission
Became a staunch Republican, wasn't easy in those days,
Then awarded the Presidency through some questionable ways.
He took the oath of office in a private hall,
Canceled the parade and even the ball;
He bravely faced his political nagging,
Even did what he could to stop carpet bagging.
The wisdom of his policy was by word of mouth,
To end all the violence and bring peace to the South;
Then to a hot issue, a political bomb,
Just how to cope with civil service reform.
Workers now slipped into emotional depression,
Which was brought about because of economic recession;
Financiers and bankers did not worry or fret,
As long as payments were made against the public debt.
In some respects he was quite a charmer,
He showed little concern for the poor country farmer;
With the railroad strike on and states bursting their bubble,
He sent Federal troops to the scenes of the trouble.
After four difficult years, his position was firm,
He declared that a President should serve only one term;
At the time he left office his work was assessed,
And they say that the public was favorably impressed.
Lucy Ware Webb became Rutherford's mate,
Like her husband she was also from the Buckeye State;
A sweet-tempered girl just loaded with knowledge,
She dated Hayes while attending Wesleyan College.
With respect to competition, there just was no other,
She had already been chosen by Rutherford's mother;
Became the first First Lady with college degrees,
Gave birth to eight children but had only two knees.
With strong temperance convictions she banned liquor and wine,
Nicknamed "Lemonade Lucy" and to her that was fine;
For lasting contributions her was one of the best,
She started the annual Easter egg rolling contest.

The Failure of Detroit and Why It Won't Happen Here

A story is told that one day in the 1950s the Mayor of Detroit, the Governor of Michigan, and heads of the "big three" automobile manufacturing companies, and the President of the United Automobile Workers union, sat around a table in Detroit — rather like the "board room" scene in the 1972 motion picture, "The Godfather" — and decided how everything would run in the "Motor City." The story is apocryphal, but more about it later.

So what about the Detroit bankruptcy? Many conservative and Republican friends are indulging in schadenfreude over the failure of the experiment in liberalism that has been Detroit under the seven mayors, all Democrats, who have governed since 1962. Personally, I think it is in extremely poor taste to rejoice over the prospect that workers may lose their pensions, creditors will go unpaid, and basic public safety services are largely suspended in a city of a 700,000 souls. Furthermore, the facts do not support that narrative.

Boston, at 625,000 is, in population, nearly the same size as Detroit. We've had Democratic Mayor since 1930. Our political climate is at least as liberal as Detroit's. Ah, but the difference is Detroit was dependent on one industry and when it declined, so did the city. But if that were the explanation, what about Pittsburgh. Like Boston and Detroit the city government is of the "strong mayor" type, and since 1934 those mayors have been Democrats. At 300,000 residents it's smaller, but, like Detroit, it was, for many years dependent largely on one industry, steel. When steel production declined, so did the city. However, Pittsburgh is recovering, due to private industry and government investment in the core city.

Three things differentiate Boston from Detroit.

1. Race. Whites were leaving Detroit for the suburbs starting with the post-World War II suburban boom. After the Black riots in the summer of 1967 White-flight accelerated. After 1967 much of the White population of Michigan was afraid to cross Eight Mile Road, the division between Detroit and the northern, White suburbs. By the 1980 U.S. Census, the population of Detroit was just 34 percent White. If White Michiganders had any interest in returning to Detroit, Mayor Coleman Young's response to the census numbers made it clear they were not wanted. He declared White-flight a good thing, saying something to the effect that the rest should leave too, because Detroit is Black city. Whites heeded the Mayor's advice. Detroit is now 11 percent White.

2. Sprawl. Boston has nearly the same population as Detroit, but Detroit is half-again as large, in terms of square miles, 143 square miles compared to 90. Even when Detroit, in 1950, had a population of 1.8 million, many of the residents lived in houses set on large lots

L'Anno Bello: A Year in Italian Folklore

The Secret Holiday of Lammas

by Ally Di Censo Symynkiwicz

Years ago, during a trip to Italy in late July, I would routinely drive past round bales of hay baking in the summer sun, stacked neat in the fields like bowling balls. This was the time of haying in Italy, also known as la mietitura. Thought hot summer air still pervades the days, Italians know that the fall is soon approaching and the grains must be collected. Every time this period of the year rolls around, I too can feel autumn wrapping its cool arms around the Earth. I can see it in the nights that grow progressively darker, calling me back to the comforts of home. I can see it in the back-to-school commercials played on the television. I can see it in the golden streaks of sunlight shining through the trees, in the abundance of fruits lining the supermarkets. Many people fervently lament the end of summer, but as someone who always strives to appreciate each season, I am excitedly welcoming the start of fall — that lovely time of harvest and bounty, rhythm and comfort. These transitional days remind me of one of my favorite holidays, a little-known feast day named Lammas.

Lammas, which falls on August 1st, is one of those wonderful seasonal holidays most people stopped observing once society turned overwhelmingly industrial. In the ancient Celtic tradition, Lammas celebrated the first day of autumn. Yes, the days are still humid and the leaves have yet to change color, but Lammas marks the agricultural start of the fall, when the first harvests of grains and fruits are gathered. The name Lammas derives loaf-mass, as a loaf of bread made with the first wheat of the year was brought to church and blessed during this holiday. The ancient Celts also knew Lammas as Lughnasadh (pronounced loo-na-sa), a harvest feast in honor of Lugh, the god of light. Lughnasadh was celebrated with bonfires, dancing and pilgrimages to hilltops to gather fruits. Even today, people in Ireland mark the first day of August with festivals and visits to friends and family, while priests bless the fields. No matter how people enjoy this holiday, Lammas revels in the unique transitions of this season. While occurring at a time of fiery light and heat, Lammas also prepares those working with the Earth for the autumn and harvests to come.

A harvest feast is never complete without some form of rustic bread, so every Lammas I gather with my grandmother and mother to prepare a focaccia, that wonderful Italian staple. We make it from scratch and as the hands of three generations become immersed in the flour and water, I think about my ancestors, to whom the first harvest of wheat often meant a matter of life and death. The focaccia is then topped with paper-thin slices of onion, rosemary leaves and coarse salt, but the real star is the bread itself. The Lammas focaccia serves as a prime example of why food remains so important in holidays. Food can act as a powerful reminder of our past and the world of our present, as surely as the wheat in the focaccia becomes a reminder of the Earth's nurturing abundance. To mark a day with specialty food is to set that day apart, to recognize that it has values and implications that speak to our universal needs and desires. Celebrating Lammas can be as easy as making or eating bread — provided we are attuned to the significance behind it.

It really is a shame that the seasonal aspect of holidays

THINKING OUT LOUD

Trayvon's Death

Brings Up Race Elephant in the Room

"There are very few African-American men in this country who haven't had the experience of being followed when they were shopping in a department store. Trayvon Martin could have been me 35 years ago."

— President Barack Obama

When Barack Obama was elected president in 2008, liberals hailed the victory that we were now living in a post-racial America. However, since his election, he has become a lightning rod for racial division. Everything he does or says seems to be viewed through the prism of race. Here we had a president who was biracial, a president raised by his white maternal grandparents and we saw him attending a church whose pastor's views certainly weren't close to post-racial anything.

I grew up in the '50s and '60s in lower Roxbury, a racially-mixed neighborhood consisting of Italian and Irish Americans and a growing African-American community. I was the first "Irish Giarratani" in my family. My brother met his wife in Roxbury and they married in 1968 which was not a time when biracial marriages were common place. On my mother's Irish side, I had an uncle who married a Latina from Puerto Rico and I had four Puerto Rican-Irish cousins growing up. My family background was for me the real expression of what it meant to be an American.

Lots of people in the African American community were upset with the verdict on George Zimmerman. They saw it as unjust because he killed an innocent 17-year-old young man. Did he target Martin because he was black or wearing a hoodie? Did he go out looking for a black boy to shoot?

What is racial profiling, is it by itself a hate crime? If racial profiling leads to the death of another human being, is that a punishable crime? Was Zimmerman a racist with a gun on that fateful evening? Or was he just a crime watch member looking out for the safety of his community? If Trayvon had been white, would Zimmerman have acted any differently? Was justice not served by the not guilty verdict rendered by the jury of six women?

Depending on the race of the person you ask, you are likely to get polar opposite answers. Many in the Black community say reaction in the African-Americans is based on 400 years of racism in this country. If you ask a white person, many say the

by Bennett Molinari and Richard Molinari

Saint Peter was born at Imola, Italy in 406, he was baptized, educated and ordained a deacon by Cornelius, Bishop of Imola. After serving as a deacon in Imola, Saint Peter was given the name Chrysologus, meaning 'golden worded' in Greek, as a result of his exceptional oratorical ability. In 433, Pope Sixtus III consecrated him bishop of Ravenna. As bishop, Peter practiced many corporal and spiritual works of mercy, and shepherded his flock with utmost diligence and care.

The traditional account, as recorded in the Roman Breviary, is that Pope Sixtus III had a vision of St. Peter and St. Apollinaris, the first bishops of Rome and Ravenna respectively, who showed Sixtus a young man and said he was the next Bishop of Ravenna. When the group from Ravenna arrived in Rome including Cornelius and his archdeacon Peter, Sixtus recognized Peter as the young man in his vision and consecrated him as a bishop.

Known as "The Doctor of Homilies," Peter was known for his short but inspired talks; he kept his sermons short for fear of boring his audience. After hearing his first homily as bishop, Empress Galla Placidia is said to have given him the surname Chrysologus, by which he is known. Galla Placidia was to become the patroness of many of Peter's projects. Peter worked to rid his city of the last vestiges of paganism and spoke against the Arian and Monophysite teachings, condemning them as heresies.

Peter explained to his flock topics such as the Apostles' Creed, John the Baptist, the Blessed Virgin Mary and the mystery of the Incarnation, in simple and clear language. Peter advocated daily reception of Holy Communion. He urged his listeners to have confidence in the forgiveness offered through Christ.

He died at Imola, Italy in 450 during the Pontificate of Pope Leo the Great. Saint Peter Chrysologus was declared a Doctor of the Church in 1729 by Pope Benedict XIII largely as a result of his simple, practical, and clear sermons. In the eighth century Felix of Ravenna preserved 176 of his homilies which have come down to us, nearly all dealing with Gospel subjects. His feast day is celebrated on July 30th.

ALL THAT ZAZZ

by Mary N. DiZazzo

Hair Pieces ... No Rugs Please!

Ciao Bella,

Coming from a three-generation family of cosmetologists, I always remember my Nana and Mom changing their hair color and styles frequently. Streaks of blonde, shades of auburn, puffing and teasing were always there in capturing a look. One day Mom came home with a fancier bouffant than usual. Big high waves and dips accented by a fan of blonde hair sweeping through her deep brunette front bang! I knew that she and Dad were attending The Dahlia Ball. Her coif looked perfect with her emerald green gown of chiffon and taffeta! It was the first time I saw a "hairpiece." That sweep of blonde was attached to a pin and carefully tucked into the roots of Mom's real hair. Then her hairdresser proceeded to design her masterpiece coiffure with Mom's instructions. Stunning!

Recently I tried to help a friend out with her hairpiece. It inspired me that while I was looking for hers I found some interesting hairpieces for myself in my exact color! Truly a lifesaver with the hot and humid weather we've been experiencing. Just pull up, tuck in my own hair and clip on or pin in the different style piece to fit the day's activity or mood! Curls, waves, ponytails and chignons of hair that will grace and frame a face!

One hair guru Ken Paves brought back the "hairpiece" they call "hair extensions" today. In 2004 he started moonlighting creating "big beautiful hair" on strippers for star stylist "Oribe" in Miami. This job paid $75 a week! Pave studied at the Vidal Sassoon Academy and the Tony and Guy Institute. He traveled with other celebrity hair

Mrs. Murphy . . . As I See It

Liberty Plaza facade renovations should be completed in a couple of months, giving the Plaza a stylish and updated look. Also good news for East Boston. The Lombardo family is now in the process of getting permits from the BRA to begin renovations to knock down the old Seville Theatre located on Meridian Street with the rear end of the structure located on Border Street. The plan is to replace the old theatre with an attractive 65 unit building of studio and one and two bedroom units with 47 spaces of underground parking. There will be approximately 15,000 square feet of retail space. The building is expected to be six stories with part of the upper floors stepped back. Knowing the Lombardo family's past projects, the building will be state-of-the-art, and a huge asset for East Boston! ... Every Tuesday is trash pickup day on Bennington Street, if you drive down Bennington Street, a main street in East Boston, you will see it lined with some barrels, but mostly trash bags. If the city is to move forward, visitors especially shouldn't have to view a main street filled with litter coming from torn trash bags, it looks bad for the city! The city of Boston should consider making it mandatory for every home and business owner on Bennington Street to own barrels and eliminate trash bags. In fact, every homeowner and business in East Boston should be using trash barrels as opposed to plastic bags that can easily be ripped by animals or trash pickers. That is one reason why the streets of East Boston never look clean ... Ed Deveau has left his post as Senator Anthony Petrucci's Chief of Staff for the past 13 years to campaign for mayoral candidate Rob Consalvo, a bit of a surprise to some! However, Consalvo's campaign kickoff held at the Orient Heights Yacht Club recently attracted over 200 supporters, who attended to wish Consalvo good luck and lend their support. Attendees included long time veteran East Boston activists Jim and Patti Sartori and Peter and Joanne Cardinale. If you were to judge by all the Consalvo signs on buildings and homes in Eastie, you would say Consalvo is strong in East Boston ... Mayor Thomas Menino will be co-writing a book about his 20 year career as mayor of one of the most beautiful cities in the world. The book is expected to come out next spring ... As if the Tsarnaev family hasn't gotten enough out of the taxpayers, now the suspected bomber Dzhokhar Tsarnaev is asking more lawyers be added to his defense team, all at the expense of the taxpayer! The kid has more gall than brains! ... It's unfortunate that Trayvon Martin was killed. Everyone feels bad. However, the NOT GUILTY verdict handed down by jurors, should be enough proof for George Zimmerman, to be left alone! So why is ambulance chaser, and cheap opportunist Al Sharpton, the NAACP, plus President Barack Obama his appointee Eric Holder stirring the pot? Instigators are now crying it's a racial hate crime! What else is new from the left! When the infamous O.J. Simpson was on trial for killing his wife and an innocent young man (who happened to be returning glasses to Simpson's wife) was found NOT GUILTY, there were no demonstrations by black and white community leaders! Case Closed! ... Bars and clubs in Revere have won their appeal to the Revere Licensing Board to have their hours rolled back from 12:00 am to 2:00 am. A cause they have been fighting for a long time. Businesses with clean records wanted their hours rolled back to 2:00 am in order to hang onto customers they claim left their bars at midnight to travel into East Boston where bars are open until 2:00 am ... There's a hidden treasure in East Boston called St. Emilion Macaroon Co., located at 149 Everett Street. They sell almond Macaroon cookies that are to die for! The cookie is so delicate it melts in your mouth. Try some, they're a step above the average cookie ...

Till next time!

Socially Scene Reviewed

.... Culture our City; I was on my way to up my technology with the purchase of an iPad when the window of a shop caught my eye. There were pictures of Edgar Allan Poe pasted to the glass. Ones with so much history and said so much.

I began to read the flyer for the tours of Poe's travel just across in the Boston Common. I was instantly taken back to my childhood where the passion for writing began and soon after found myself inside telling Pat how as a child I had an obsession with Poe and his books even though I couldn't understand them.

There were two locked doors for me to buzz my way through and just as I thought they may be closed the sweetest woman waved to me as if to say, "I will get there soon." I smiled. I was in such awe of all the trinkets; leather bound books and vintage jewelry. Pat as she introduced herself to me sometime into my venture was telling me the most fascinating stories about Poe and the City of Boston.

Turns out Bartevean Inc., a non-profit, second-hand shop her family started over a 100 years ago was also the head of the Edgar Allan Poe Society. I wasn't sure what had my attention more, the stories this very able and peppy 90-year-old woman was telling me about her ancestors on the Mayflower or the timeless jewelry.

The aura of this classic shop had put me at such ease, I haven't felt peace like that all week. A part of me wanted to purchase everything, knowing if I had, oh the compliments I would receive on my one of a kind jewelry.

Unfortunately I had to run, yet luckily the lovely Patricia invited me to come back, bring a lunch as she would love for me to visit her. With what the fast pace city has done to my generation it was soothing to enjoy nice conversation and gorgeous handmade jewelry. Bartevean, Inc. (Custom Designs) 160 Boylston Street, Boston, MA, 617-423-0266.

On my way looping back to the North End I passed by all three stages set up for the Outside the Box Boston Festival. There were two large ones set up; one at Boston Common Beacon Street that hosted acts like the Lemmonheads, Buffalo Tom and the Mighty Mighty Bosstones the other was at City Hall Plaza's Main Stage that featured acts like Women of the World and Jenny Dee & the Delinquents where the event came to a close Sunday.

In between each stage were chef demonstrations, kiddy corners, puppet shows and Berklee art performances throughout the Boston Common. Friday afternoon on my venture home I was lucky to catch the Angkor Dance Group on the Park Street Stage. They were a very authentic performance that drew me in enough to watch the show through our tremendous heat wave over the weekend.

I happened to stroll through again on Saturday and was pulled into a performance from Echo and Drake yet a little shorter lived with our record highs. There were crowds of people at all of the events despite the heat, so I think it's safe to call "Outside the Box Boston" a success.

Ray Barron's 11 O'CLOCK NEWS

Rangers in Death Valley National Park are begging tourists to stop cracking eggs on the sidewalks. Daytime temperatures there have soared above 120 degrees, inspiring many visitors to try to fry eggs on the ground, leaving a mess for maintenance crews. If visitors must attempt egg-frying, the rangers said, they should at least “use a pan or tin foil.”

Strictly for the dogs! When Claire Johnson, 50, took her seeing-eye dog, Venice, to training classes in Stoke-on-Trent, England, the canine helper quickly became friends with fellow student Rodd, owned by 52-year-old Mark Gaffey. As the two dogs became inseparable pals, their sight-impaired owners struck up a friendship that soon tuned into romance. Now, after an 11-month courtship, Johnson and Gaffey are to marry, with Venice and Rodd leading them to the altar. “They are as much a couple as me and Mark,” said Johnson. “They will be walking us down the aisle and will be the ring bearers. This wedding is down to them.”

Wow! When Aaron Collins of Lexington, Kentucky, died suddenly last year at the age of 30, he left his family instructions in his will to leave an “awesome tip” for an unsuspecting server. “I mean $500 on a f—ing pizza for a waiter or waitress,” he wrote. His family did as Aaron had requested — but his brother, Seth didn’t want to stop at just one tip. Seth has now given out $500 tips to waiters and waitresses in 17 states and his family has raised over $60,000 to do it in all 50. “I’ll keep giving whatever money we have,” said Seth.

Scostumato! Wanda Podgurski of California fled rather than face California charges of insurance fraud, taunting a prosecutor with a tweet reading, “Catch me if you can.” Police used her Twitter account to trace her to Mexico, where she was arrested.

Fatso news! Mexico overtook the U.S. as the world’s fattest nation. Thanks to a rapidly worsening diet of fizzy drinks and cheap fast food, 32.8 percent of Mexican adults are now classified as obese, compared with 31.8 percent of Americans.

The great Steven Sebestyen says the Agriculture Department says the average American eats 1,148 pounds of food a year. Of course, a lot of it goes to waist.

Steven’s shapely and brilliant wife Theresa, says, “Overweight people don’t like to hear four letter words — such as diet.”

“Happy Birthday to You” is now before the court, said NPR.org. A federal class-action suit filed in New York claims that music publisher Warner/Chappell “boldly, but wrongfully and unlawfully,” insists that it holds a valid copyright to the world’s most widely recognized song. The Time Warner subsidiary collects an estimated $2 million a year in royalties on the ubiquitous tune and claims it can keep doing so until 2030. But the suit says the song — written by two sisters in Louisville in 1893 and originally entitled “Good Morning to You” — entered the public domain long before any copyright was issued and demands that Warner/Chappell return all the licensing fees it has collected for decades from restaurants and television shows out to mark special occasions. Warner/Chappell has not yet responded to the complaint.

According to the noted scholar Paul J. Waters, four out of five students starting at a community college say they intend to eventually get a four-year bachelor’s degree. Only about one in 10 ends up achieving that goal. So reports HuffingtonPost.com.

Let’s not replace St. Patrick with James Joyce just yet, said Mary Kenny. There’s a misguided movement afoot in Ireland to turn Bloomsday — June 16, the day the events in his great novel Ulysses take place — into a national holiday and a key tourist event. There’s no denying that Joyce was a genius and a literary giant. But to appropriate him “an Irish icon” is to misread him. While Joyce drew on Ireland as the source for his work, he had “scant regard for the country” itself. To celebrate him as an example of the Irish character would be even worse: Joyce was often drunk and could never provide for his family. Enough said. We are an admirer of James Joyce.

Ugh. Depression fuels obesity! If feeling sad makes you reach for an extra helping of ice cream, your taste buds may be more to blame than your willpower. A new study shows that intense feelings can make us more sensitive to taste but less sensitive to how much fat we are consuming.

Weirdo! A Turkish man is so desperate to give up smoking that he’s locked a cage around his head. Ibrahim Yucel, 42, repeatedly tried to kick his two-packs-a-day habit after his father died of lung cancer several years ago, but kept going back to the smokes. So Yucel designed a birdcage-like helmet to physically prevent himself from putting a cigarette in his mouth. He wears the device to work every day and leaves the keys at home with his wife, to prevent a relapse.

The observant Tom Analetto, the unofficial mayor of Medford says, “A new cigarette offers coupons good for a cemetery lot.”

A book you should read! “Love Italian Style: The Secrets of My Hot and Happy Marriage” by Melissa Gorga. St. Martin’s (320p) ISBN 978-1-250-04148-7 RealHousewives of New Jersey star Gorga and her husband, Joe, have become fan favorites due to their unwavering devotion and passion for each other. VEGETABLE MEDLEY

|--|--|
| 2 medium potatoes | 2 large ripe tomatoes or a four-ounce portion crushed tomatoes |
| 1/2 pounds fresh, frozen or canned string or cut beans | 1/3 cup olive oil |
| 1 large garlic clove | 1 chopped medium onion |
| 1 medium zucchini sliced (1/2-inch pieces) not peeled | 1 tablespoon capers |
| 1 medium yellow squash sliced (1/2-inch pieces) not peeled | 3/4 tablespoon basil |
| | Salt |

In a saucepan, sauté onion and capers in oil until opaque. Add chopped ripened tomatoes or four ounces of crushed tomato. If you prefer a heavier sauce, use a four-ounce can tomato sauce instead. Add fresh or dried basil. Stir, cover and simmer slowly. Meanwhile, peel and cube potatoes. Wash and set aside. If using fresh string beans, cut ends off, wash and set aside. Add potatoes and beans to saucepan. Stir, cover, and simmer slowly for ten minutes. Add sliced zucchini and yellow squash (optional). Salt to taste. Add water if more liquid is desired and bring to a boil. Cover and simmer slowly until all vegetables are tender. Serve with garlic bread.

Serves two.

NOTE: For those who enjoy rice or pasta, prepare your preferred rice or macaroni according to directions on the package. Serve a portion topped with the vegetable medley. Sprinkle with your grated cheese of choice.

that you’d expect to see in the suburbs. It was ever thus. I recall, in the 1980s, reading a book about the history of Detroit that mentioned that, even before the city boomed with the automobile industry, earlier, nineteenth century visitors commented that everything was so spread out in Detroit, compared to other towns.

3. Big, big, big. Even if the story that begins this essay isn’t the literal truth, it explains much of the problem of Detroit. One big industry dominated. The Chairmen of Chrysler, Ford and General Motors, along with the President of union, and a strong Mayor decided everything. That means that when mistakes were made they were colossal, and difficult to remedy. From the 1970s on there was talk of, but no significant action on, diversifying the economy. As educated people left the city the remaining population elected worse and worse Mayors.

Put those three factors together and it was just a matter of time before Detroit failed.

A Nostalgic Remembrance

Saturday the 27th is the anniversary of the end of the Korean War. August 7th is Purple Heart Day and on August 14th, Japan surrendered to end WWII. I met a cousin the other day and over coffee, we talked about the family. The men in our family have been involved in all the wars since the Spanish American in 1898. That's just two years after the first relative arrived in America. Both sides of the family have been flag wavers ever since that point in time. If this sounds corny, then let it be so, but being an American to all sides of my family has been extremely important if for no more of a reason than personal satisfaction. I mention all this be-cause we are still hyphenated ... Italian-American. It makes me think we are in limbo somewhere not quite in Heaven according to what the nuns told us when I was a kid.

When people ask me what I am, I often say, "Writer, musician, actor and educator." The next question is usually, "No, where are you from?" My answer is always, "Boston." And then I'm asked, "No, what I meant is, where are your people from?" Again, I reply, "Boston." Of course, when they ask what country the family originated in, I have to play into their hands and say, "Italy." Before I walk away, the comment is usually, "Oh, you're Italian-American," with a verbal hyphen in between.

If we have to be hyphenated, then let me quote the words of an attorney named Angelo Bianchi, Esq. A while back he wrote a narrative called, "I Am An Italian-American."

It begins with, "I am an Italian-American. My roots are deep in an ancient soil, drenched by the Mediterranean sun and watered by pure streams from snow capped mountains.

I am enriched by thousands of years of culture.

My hands are those of the mason, the artist, the man of the soil.

My thoughts have been recorded in the annals of Rome, the poetry of Virgil, the creations of Dante and the philosophy of Benedetto Croce. I am an Italian-American and from my ancient world, I first spanned the seas of the new world. I am Cristoforo Colombo. I am Giovanni Caboto, known in American history as John Cabot, discoverer of the mainland of North America.

I am Amerigo Vespucci, who lent his name to the new world, America. First to sail on the Great Lakes in 1697, founder of the territory that became the State of Illinois, colonizer of Louisiana and Arkansas. I am Enrico Tonti.

I am Filippo Mazzei, friend of Thomas Jefferson and my thesis on the equality of man was written into the Bill of Rights. I am William Paca signer of the Declaration of Independence. I am an Italian-American. I financed the Northwest Expedition of George Rogers Clark and accompanied him through the lands that would become Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan. I am Colonel Francesco Vigo.

I mapped the Pacific from Mexico to Alaska and to the Philippines. I am Alessandro Malaspina.

I am Giacomo Beltrami, discoverer of the source of the Mississippi River in 1823. I created the Dome of the United States Capitol. They called me the Michelangelo of America ... I am Constantino Brumidi.

In 1904, I founded in San Francisco the Bank of Italy, now known as the Bank of America, one of the largest financial institutions in the world and am the originator of strip mall banking. I am Amadeo Peter Giannini. I am Enrico Fermi, father of nuclear science in America. I am the first enlisted man to win the Medal of Honor in World War II, I am John Basilone of New Jersey.

I am an Italian-American. I represent the millions who served in America's military services and the tens of thousands whose names are enshrined in military cemeteries from Guadalcanal to the Rhine just from World War II alone.

I am the steel maker in Pittsburgh, the grower in the Imperial Valley of California, the fashion designer in Manhattan, the movie maker in Hollywood the home maker and the breadwinner in 10,000 communities all over the United States.

I am an American without stint or reservation, loving this land as only one who understands history, its agonies and its triumphs can love it and serve it. I will not be told that my contribution is any less nor my role not as worthy as that of any other American.

I will stand in support of this nation's freedom and promise against all foes. My heritage has dedicated me to this nation. I am proud of my full heritage and I shall remain worthy of it. I am an Italian-American."

When I read this document, it makes me proud of who I am and those of my family who came before me. The one change I would like to make for posterity is to remove the hyphen between Italian and American. In other words, my grandfather was Italian, my father was Italian American, I am American Italian and my sons are American. It has taken several generations to remove the hyphen, but as far as I'm concerned, it's gone.

I recently had a conversation with a couple of people who are gun shy when it comes to new-comers from other countries. When our people came here, they were mostly European. Today's immigrants are from other parts of the world, Africa, Asia, the Middle East and Latin America. Many look down on these folks due to the physical differences between them and our folks of European origins. My comment is, "Give them a chance before we stereotype them into negative categories. If they mean well and want the American dream, let's help them out. If they are looking for trouble, then let's make that dream become a nightmare. We've worked too hard to let things fall apart. We learned from the people who preceded us and laid down the ground rules for what became America. We have a lot to be proud of with just two major blemishes on our record, slavery and the disposition of the Native American." When I mention these things, some of those who are gun shy agree with me, others don't. Let's see what the future brings without the hyphen. GOD BLESS AMERICA jury made a verdict and we must live with it. I remember back during the O.J. trial, I thought the jury did nullification with that verdict. Race was thrown into the trial as if it had anything to do with the murder. I saw no justice for his wife while many Black friends of mine thought O.J. was just innocent. However, I believe in our justice system. It isn't perfect but simply all we got. The jury spoke and that was that.

Justice did not fail Trayvon Martin. The system worked. The rule of law and not mob rule won the day. I find things outrageous when Rev. Al Sharpton, Rev. Jesse Jackson and NAACP President Ben Jealous appear to be fanning the flames like racial arsonists trying to seemingly politicize the tragedy for their own ends.

I understand why there is anger out there but George

Zimmerman is not the face of the second coming of the KKK. He has to live with the knowledge that his actions eventually led to a confrontation that left a 17-year-old dead on the ground with his Skittles and Arizona ice tea next to his body. Does anyone really think that was what Zimmerman wanted to see happen?

Americans are decent people for the most part. We have gotten better with age and time. In the end, most of us know that what binds us all together is far stronger than what divides us. We cannot let the death of Trayvon Martin go unnoticed. Nor can we simply call Zimmerman a racist murderer.

We cannot let those who bait us with racial hostility win out the day. We need to move forward together and learn from this tragedy and prevent further such tragedies.

has declined in the popular imagination. A holiday like Lammas can provide us with the symbolic background to look for the harvests in our lives. What transitions are we facing? From what goals would we like to reap benefits? How do we plan ahead for the future while still enjoying the present? With its overtones of the approaching autumn, Lammas helps us answer questions like these, while also teaching us to become closer with the rhythms of our mother Earth. Now, whenever Lammas looms on the calendar, I always think back to my enchanted summer in Italy, and how the magic of the Earth and the cadence of the seasons, emanated from all around me. By paying attention to the little holidays and reasons to celebrate we so often ignore, we can recapture that magic wherever we are.

how to have a marriage as successful as her own. She explains how to “dress to please your man” and yourself and with the help of her makeup artist, she reveals the details of her beauty regimen. In order to keep one’s marriage healthy, Gorga recommends a weekly date night (“Saturday nights are like church for marriage”) and insists on maintaining open lines of communications and parenting “as a single unit.” Gorga also shares events from her past that led her to meeting Joe, joining the cast of Real Housewives and beginning her singing career; Joe weighs in as well on meeting Melissa, adjusting to life as a reality TV star and the male sexual appetite. Gorga’s tips are charming if very traditional — and they seem to work for her and Joe — but they’re far from secrets. Last heard, the book will be available in September.

Useless Information: Construction on the Leaning Tower of Pisa began on August 9, 1173. There are 296 steps to the top. After the great fire of Rome in 64 C.E., the emperor Nero ostensibly decided to lay blame on Christians residing in the City of Rome. He gathered them together, crucified them, covered them in pitch and burned them. He walked around his gardens admiring the view. Ancient Egyptians slept on pillows made of stone. Since 1978, at least 37 people have died as a result of shaking vending machines in an attempt to get free merchandise. More than 100 have been injured.

The first Italian American to receive the U.S. Congressional Medal of Honor was Luigi Palma di Cesnola, a Union General in the Civil War, who later became the first director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. And, General Carl Vuono was the first Italian American to be appointed Army Chief of Staff. He served from 1987-1991 and was appointed by President Ronald Reagan. In 1990, Mary Lou Retton, born Mary Lou Rettoni, became the first female gymnast and the youngest athlete ever inducted into the Olympic Hall of Fame. In the 1984 Olympics at age 16, she won all-around gold medal in woman’s gymnastics.

Some show business reminiscing with the ageless stately musicologist and philanthropist Albert Natale. Lucille Ball once stated, “When I worked with Katharine Hepburn, decades ago, I was terrified of her — that voice, her jaw, the whole package.” Brian Aherne, says, “My marriage to Joan Fontaine roughly coincided with World War II. It even began the same year (1939). Enough said? Merv Griffin, while under contract to Freddy Martin in 1951, recorded the song “I’ve Got a Lovely Bunch of Coconuts.” Record sales were three million, but Griffin was paid only 50 dollars for his singing. Gene Kelly, Cary Grant and Burt Lancaster were all considered for the part of Sky Masterson in the 1955 movie “Guys and Dolls.” The part went to Marlon Bando, and Zero Mostel received his nickname “Zero” in elementary school because he was such a poor student.

AMERICA IS A BEAUTIFUL ITALIAN NAME

congressmen, governors and other officials praised the work of the newspaper in times of war and peace. The newspaper had to fight vigorously against all forms of discrimination in employment and immigration laws, yet on the issue of loyalty and patriotism, there was never any question.

The Italian immigrants after a long period of confusion, which was often bewildering, accepted in full the American concept of school, church and state and have become part of this democratic society, bringing to it all the qualities the Italians always possessed as builders, dreamers, organizers, fighters, artists, inspired teachers and defenders of Italo-American ideals.

Throughout the United States and in Boston, especially where freedom began over 200 years ago, the GAZZETTA or the POST-GAZETTE has played a vital part in history.

Today, the University of Minnesota and the University of Florence in Italy have compiled all of our issues from the first to its current publication on microfilm for future generations, thereby recognizing the POST-GAZETTE’s historical contribution to this country and the development of our unique culture to the people on these shores.

We continue to bring to our readers the incredible stories of Americans from coast-to-coast who are the “Builders of America.” We salute these great men and women who have made a unique contribution to our country and heritage.

Police has rightly suspended the sergeant for handing off the photos he took to Boston Magazine to counter the awful cover story in Rolling Stone. I think the state police had no alternative but to suspend him for one day. Those photos were taken by Sgt. Murphy as a police photographer and he had no business giving photos from work to a magazine no matter how noble his reasoning was.

NY Woman Accused of Defrauding One Fund

A New York woman who claimed she had suffered traumatic brain injury as a result of the Marathon Bombings has been arrested and charged with defrauding the One Fund Boston’s victim compensation fund of nearly $500,000. Officials say she falsified medical records to support her claim which had been approved in late June. Not long ago, an arrest was made of another individual who falsely claimed benefits from the victims’ fund. Are there any others out there who got money falsely? Officials from the One Boston Fund need to do a better job of investigating claims. The facts are clear; there have already been two cases of fraud. Two cases too many.

12 Trips to Deportation?

Listening to Mark Levin one night last week on WRKO, I learned about a guy who has already been arrested and deported 11 times. Recently, he found his way back across the Mexican border in the Tucson area by the local sheriff’s office. The sheriff was livid.

The guy keeps making his way back here with drugs. His only punishment is deportation, but for this illegal perp it is a merry-go-round ride at old Revere Beach. The sheriff says we need to secure our borders before handing out a pathway for citizenship to 11 to 20 million illegals here. Amnesty alone does nothing but create a bigger problem. In 10 years time, with chain immigration, the 11-20 million could reach 25 to 30 million counting spouses, children, parents and grandparents. Then, meanwhile another, say 7 to 8 million will take their place living in the shadows.

By the way, the above illegal perp is only 21 years old.

Insider Threat Program

Recently, media outlets reported that President Obama by yet another Executive Order has created the ‘Insider Threat Program’ seemingly in reaction to the Ed Snowden leaks on domestic spying by the N.S.A. Federal employees apparently will be trained in behavioral profiling to spot future Ed Snowdens. When will Obama be passing out the brown shirts to everyone? Perhaps, federal employees will now be mandated to watch episodes of “Criminal Minds.”

The Judicial Verdict

Recently, while shopping at Roche Bros. in West Roxbury, I found a copy of The Judicial Watch Verdict newsletter. It is a monthly publication that covers the news that the liberal news media attempts to avoid. It is 26 pages long and full of stuff conservatives out here need to know. Top story in the July issue was Benghazi, the story which refuses to just go away despite everything the liberal media does to make that reality so. Another great piece on the Obama IRS Scandal. And don’t forget food stamps for illegal aliens and the records uncovered showing the USDA promoting this gross misuse of food stamps.

EXTRA Innings

by Sal Giaratani

Willie Mays

The Day Was July 11 in the Year ...

Back on this date in 1914, Babe Ruth made his Major League debut for the Boston Red Sox and received credit for a 4-3 victory over the Indians. He was removed for a pinch-hitter in the seventh and Duffy Lewis' single led to the winning run ... In 1985, on the same date, Nolan Ryan of the Houston Astros at that time became the first pitcher in the Majors to reach the 4,000 strikeout mark when he fanned New York's Danny Heep leading off the sixth inning. The Astros beat the Mets 4-3 in 12 innings on Bill Doran's fifth hit of the game.

I Made an Error in Last Week's Column

It was Dwight Howard and not Dwight Howell who said bye bye to the LA Lakers in favor of the Houston Rockets over the negative tax issue in California and the favorable tax situation for him in Texas. Thanks to my nephew George for setting the record straight.

Pedroia Billboard in Eastie

There's a billboard looking down at the East Boston Greenway, that's not far from Santarpio's on Porter Street for a new coconut water drink. There's a super-sized image of Dustin Pedroia saying "Hydrate Naturally with Dustin Pedroia." He's holding onto a big baseball bat.

Talking Baseball to Beat Alzheimer's

Read an interesting commentary recently in AARP Magazine on baseball and Alzheimer's. Jim Carlson used to hop trains as a kid to get to St. Louis where he'd watch the Cardinals play baseball through a hole in the fence at the ballpark. He is 89 years old and meets regularly with other diehard Cardinals fans to talk baseball and share memories. As members of the Cardinals Reminiscence League, they all share two things in common. They love baseball and also are suffering from early stage Alzheimer's. The league is the brainchild of John Morley M.D. Morley is the director of geriatric medicine at St. Louis University. There's a similar program in Scotland and soccer.

Buck Showalter Joins Fantastic Four

Last Friday when the Baltimore Orioles beat the Texas Rangers, 3-1 in Arlington, Texas, it represented manager Buck Showalter's 250th victory with the team since being hired in July 2010. Showalter now joins Joe Torre, Gene Mauch and Dick Williams as the only Major League managers to win 250 wins with at least four different teams. Showalter also won at least 250 games with the Yankees, Arizona Diamondbacks and the Texas Rangers.

Bailey Out for Season

Andrew Bailey, the Red Sox closer, up until last month, when he lost the role after a series of bad outings, is now out for the season. For Bailey, his latest injury is the latest in a series of setbacks. The 29-year-old pitched a full season for Oakland back in 2009. In the four seasons since, he has been on the D.L. at least six times. Over the last two seasons with the Red Sox, Bailey has pitched in 49 games. This year, he has a 3.77 ERA in 30 games for the Red Sox.

OMG!

The Deal is Almost Done

The Boston Red Sox and Dustin Pedroia are on the verge of completing a deal for seven years at $100 million. "It's not official or anything," Pedroia said on July 24th. Right now I'm signed through 2014. Under the new deal, Pedroia would receive an average of $14.28 million through the end of the contract. As Pedroia stated, being a Red Sox lifer is "very important" to him.

A SCHOOL THAT BELIEVES IN CONTRACTS — In a somewhat refreshing take on contracts in the athletic world, there still is at least one place where those who give their word by signing a contract are expected to keep it — or experience significant financial penalties.

That place would be Kent State University in Ohio which has just successfully sued its former men's basketball coach Geno Ford for breach of contract. The amount awarded to Kent State by the court was $1.2 million.

Ford had amassed a fine 68-37 record and won two Mid-American Conference titles in three years at KSU. Back in 2010 the coach had renegotiated his contract, increasing his salary to $300,000 per year, making him the highest paid coach in the conference.

Ah, but KSU had inserted into the contract a "liquidated damages clause" which stated that if the coach left on his own before March 31, 2015 Kent would get the balance of his contract all in one payment. If Kent fired him, the coach would get the balance.

Fast forward to March 2011 and coach Ford had an offer he felt he could not refuse. Come coach at Bradley University for $700,000 a year. And off he went. But Kent State then filed a lawsuit against him for the remaining four years of his salary ($1.2 million). And just last week the institution won a legal victory.

Ohio Attorney General Michael DeWine was quoted in press reports as stating: "When coaches and high profile employees leave public universities in breach of their contracts, the State of Ohio has an obligation to seek the compensation to which it is entitled."

Coach Ford should have known better. Jim Christian, his immediate predecessor, left Kent State to coach at Texas Christian and wound up paying KSU $350,000.

And the legal actions aren't over. Kent is also suing Bradley concerning the matter. That lawsuit is scheduled to go to a jury trial on October 7.

To all colleges and pro franchises: We hope you're taking notes. Now you know what to insert into the next contracts that you offer. You also need the willpower to back up that written language with court filings, if needed.

JUST TO COOL US OFF — Both the preseason and regular season schedules for the Bruins were announced during the recent heat wave. The B's will have two preseason home games at the Garden, hosting Detroit on September 19th and Washington on September 23rd.

The Bruins will open the regular season with a three-game home stand, meeting Tampa Bay on October 3rd, Detroit on October 5th and Columbus (without former Bruin Nathan Horton who has had shoulder surgery) on October 10th.

November 5th brings Tyler Seguin back, as Dallas visits, while the rematch between the Bruins and the Stanley Cup champion Chicago Blackhawks at the Garden won't take place until March 27th. The B's will play a road game in Chicago on January 19th.

IN MEMORIAM — Remembering the victims of the worst plane crash in Boston history which occurred 40 years ago (July 31, 1973) at Logan International Airport. The crash happened when a Delta Airlines DC-9 hit the seawall at the airport while coming in for a landing in the fog. All 89 people on board Flight 723 were killed, including one person who died several months later in a hospital.

Also remembering Harvard University baseball coach Joe Walsh who died one year ago (July 31, 2012) at his home in New Hampshire. The annual New England College All-Star Game is now named in his honor.
