Senior Centers Sensitive to Ageism?

According to a news story in the Telegram & Gazette serving the Greater Worcester area, "Sensitive to ageism, senior centers grapple with what to call themselves." At its June meeting, the Oxford Council on Aging voted in favor of changing the name of the Oxford Senior Center to the Oxford Social Center because the word "senior" could be perceived as derogatory toward people of a certain age. On July 9th, the Oxford Board of Selectmen unanimously approved the change. "We wanted to take the word 'senior' out because the trend is that the word 'senior' denotes ageism and frailty," said Stacy Barr, executive director of the Oxford Council on Aging, director of Oxford Social Center, and director of the Oxford Community Center.

The folks running these centers are wasting too much time over terminology. The important thing is what these centers are doing for the older population, isn't it? Boston recently went from the Boston Elderly Commission to the Age Wise Commission. At least the city of Quincy is staying put; they still have the Council on Aging.

There is so much more to worry about than changing terms to be politically correct.

Trump Takes On Cummings and Baltimore

U.S. Rep. Elijah Cummings and the City of Baltimore were the recipients of President Trump rhetoric recently. Cummings whose district includes the City of Baltimore was reportedly called a racist by the President and Trump referred to Baltimore as somewhat corrupt and rat-infested. Harsh words that brought a harsh response! The Baltimore Sun in an editorial implied that Trump was a big RAT.

VARRO

Marcus Terentius Varro, usually referred to as Varro, was born in the Sabine town of Reate, in 116 BC. He was educated in Rome, and later by at least one Greek philosopher from the Academy. He fought against Julius Caesar in Spain during the Civil War but was forced to surrender. He later obtained the forgiveness of Caesar, who employed him to superintend the collection and arrangement of a great library which was intended for public use.

Varro is said to be the most learned of Roman scholars, and the most voluminous of Roman authors. He wrote about 74 different works, numbering 620 on the subjects of oratory, history, jurisprudence, philosophy, geography, husbandry, and the seven liberal arts, which include: grammar, logic, rhetoric, geometry, arithmetic, astronomy, music, and then added medicine and architecture. Of these 620 books, about 130 were written during the last 12 years of his life.

His writings included 24 books on Roman grammar, 41 books on political and religious institutions, a 15-book collection containing 700 short sketches on famous Greeks and Romans, and 9 books on the "liberal arts." Also included were 76 books on philosophy, and an undetermined number on geography, law, and poetry.

The 41 book series on political and religious institutions was considered to be Varro's greatest work, and it is chiefly upon this group that his reputation was based. Unfortunately, only a few fragments are available today.

There is no question that Marcus Terentius Varro's vast and varied knowledge in every facet of literature earned him the title of "most learned of Roman scholar."

EAST BOSTON/CHELSEA – Chelsea Street Bridge

New Advanced Notification Pilot Program

Feedback on Pilot Program Can be Provided at Tiny.cc/Chelsealift

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation (MassDOT) is reminding members of the public of its new advanced notification pilot program which is providing information on when the Chelsea Street Bridge, which carries traffic on Chelsea Street between East Boston and Chelsea, may be raised or lowered.

Travelers are encouraged to learn of potential bridge raisings by following @LoganToChelsea on Twitter, signing up for MBTA T-alerts for the SL3, 112 or 114 bus routes at www.mbta. com, and viewing the variable message boards located near the bridge displaying advanced notices to drivers in English and Spanish.

"MassDOT has been pleased to work closely with key stakeholders and members of the community to begin this pilot program which is providing another resource for people to use when planning trips throughout Chelsea and East Boston," said Transportation Secretary and CEO Stephanie Pollack. "We encourage members of the public to sign up for T-alerts, follow our @LoganToChelsea Twitter account, and view the message boards located in the area of the Chelsea Street Bridge so that they will have more information on when the bridge may be open to vehicular traffic or raised for a marine vessel."

Drivers should note that all notifications are subject to change depending on weather and other conditions at sea, and the U.S. Coast Guard requirement for the bridge to be opened on-demand for any vessel. MassDOT is not always provided with advanced notice of the need to raise the bridge, meaning these on-demand openings may not be reflected in the notification system.

MassDOT is continuing to work with key stakeholders to fine-tune the accuracy and reliability of the notification system, improve the predictably of bridge raisings, and minimize delays and congestion for bridge users. Members of the public are encouraged to provide feedback on the operation and use of the advance notification system by visiting tiny.cc/chelsealift.

For more information on other traffic conditions travelers are encouraged to:

Dial 511 and select a route to hear real-time conditions.

Visit www.mass511.com, a website which provides real-time traffic and incident advisory information, and allows users to subscribe to text and email alerts for traffic conditions.

Saint Sabina of Rome

by Bennett Molinari and Richard Molinari

Sabina was a rich widow of high birth, who lived in the province of Umbria in Italy during the second century. She was the widow of Senator Valentinus and daughter of Herod Metallarius. Sabina had a servant called Serapia, a native of Syria, who was a fervent Christian living as a virgin in service to God.

The religious deportment of Serapia had such an influence over Sabina that she converted to the Christian faith. In time, her fervor as a Christian grouped her among the great lights of the early church, in the beginning of the second century. During the persecution of the Emperor Hadrian, Sabina and Seraphia were apprehended, and Seraphia be beaten to death with clubs. Sabina was discharged out of regard to her high rank and friends; but she was once again apprehended and martyred the following year in Rome, as the Bollandist's have proved. The Bollandist Society (French: Société des Bollandistes) are an association of scholars and historians who since the early seventeenth century have studied writings of the lives of saints, and the culture of the saints in Christianity.

Saint Sabina's Feast day is on August 29, and again with St. Seraphia on September3.

Basilica di Santa Sabina all'Aventino, located on the Aventine hill, is the oldest Basilica in Rome, it has preserved its original plan and simplicity. In 1218, Santa Sabina Basilica was given to the Dominicans by Pope Honorius III, two years after he approved the foundation of the Order of Preachers. It is the mother church of the Order of Preachers (the Dominicans).

There are several unique features to the church: it still has the original doors of the church, which are made of cypress wood and carved with scenes from the Old and New Testaments, including one of the earliest depictions of Christ's crucifixion.

Bob dearest,

Another long and painful year has passed since you went away.

All I have left is a bouquet of beautiful memories, sprayed with a million tears.

It does not take a special day for me to think of you.

Each Mass I hear, each prayer I say is offered up for you.

I cannot bring the old days back, when we were together.

Our chain is broken now, But memories live forever.

I miss you so much

George R. Randazzo

Founded National Italian American Sports Hall of Fame

by Chris Zizza, NIASHF Director, Boston

May He Rest in Peace

George Randazzo was the type of person that as soon as you met him you knew he was genuine and that's genuine to a fault, if there is such a thing.

He was one of the kindest people I have ever met. I first met George when I joined the National Italian American Sports Hall of Fame (Massachusetts Chapter) in 1992. As the National Founder he of course attended our Banquet. I once told George that People say to me, can't you donate your time and money to a more worthy cause than sports? "Well, they are wrong!" George would say, "NIASHF isn't just about sports! It's about pride in Heritage, Helping Kids stay off the streets and drugs! By inspiring them through sports and introducing them to our Italian American heroes like Rocky Marciano or Tony Demarco, Joe DiMaggio, Tommy Lasorda, or Mike Piazza. We Maybe just a simple Hall of Fame in Chicago, but we help people every day!" George's heart was bigger than the body that housed it.

George was an Ellis Island

"Medal of Honor" recipient, there is only 2600 of these individuals in the world and they are people like Ronald Reagan, Rosa Parks, Mohammed Ali, and General Norman Schwarzkopf to name a few and give you an understanding of the company Georges Legacy will keep.

George Randazzo gave of himself to others all his life, his love of Heritage, Family, and Community will be his Legacy and he will not be forgotten. George was an amazing man and I loved him for his friendship as well as his leadership.

L'Anno Bello: A Year in Italian Folklore

Saying Hello to Sunny August

by Ally Di Censo Symynkywicz

The month of August is like a sunflower for me: big, bold, warm and colorful. Indeed, I know that August has arrived when I see these cheerful flowers carpeting the fields of the small farm near my home or beckoning happily from behind white picket fences on someone's front lawn. Just like the butter-hued sunflower, August is a month where the light seems more golden and the sky bluer. However, August also brims with bittersweet nostalgia. I know that soon school will start again, and I will need to readjust myself to the order and rhythm of my teaching job. Store shelves begin to sport decorations of scarecrows and hay, and even pumpkins for Halloween, signaling the commencement of fall and the busy nature of the harvest season. For these reasons, August truly teaches us to live in the moment, to enjoy the beautiful weather that accompanies the end of summer and the early autumn, and to revel in the bounty of Mother Earth. We can take a cue on how to celebrate August from the Italians, who honor the month with a plethora of feasts and proverbs that highlight the pleasures of this special time.

August in Italy contains several unique festivals that emphasize the communal spirit of summer. Many of these festivals are actually medieval tournaments and jousts, hearkening back to the days of old when Italy was a collection of city-states and such pageantry served as a means of displaying the power and might of one's city. At the Medieval Palio in Felire, Veneto, held on the first weekend of August, spectators can watch a parade of costumed locals and participate in an archery competition. Those who wish to witness an exciting joust can head to the La Quintana tournament at Ascoli Piceno, a city in Italy's Le Marche region, or the Giostra di Simone at the Tuscan town of Montisi, where "knights" representing the four neighborhoods of the village compete. When I spent an August in Italy years ago, I saw a similar medieval parade at my father's hometown of Sulmona in Abruzzo. As I watched noblewomen float by wearing elaborate dresses of crushed velvet and stately knights in glistening chainmail, I felt as if I had been transported to the early days of my ancestors, when life was harsh and people clung to the bounty of the Earth for survival. However, the most famous August holiday in Italy is Ferragosto, which occurs on August 15th, the day of the Assumption of the Virgin Mary. Many Italians take the whole month off for Ferragosto, and visitors to the country will find the cities largely deserted as nearly everyone has flocked to the beach or mountains.

Italians also reference a wide array of proverbs relating to the weather or agricultural conditions of August. These bits of folklore are remnants of the past, dictums left over from the epoch when society was dependent on agriculture and people's survival depended on the quality of the harvest. However, these nuggets of wisdom still find a home among Italian farmers and folklorists who preserve them for generations to come. Many of these proverbs refer to specific crops, as August is a month of abundant harvest. One such saying intones: "Acqua d'agosto, olio, miele e mosto." Translated, this means that the rains of August prepare the important Italian staples of olive oil, honey, and must, or the juice of grape skins and seeds which comprises the first step of winemaking. Another proverb declares: "Agosto matura, Septembre vendemmia," referring to the fact that grapes ripen during August in order to be ready for the vendemmia, or grape harvest, the following month. Other maxims allude to the fact that August serves as the entry point for autumn and the colder period of the year. "Agosto annunzia il inverno" means that August announces winter. Meanwhile, the proverb "Alla Madonna di Agosto si rinfresca il bosco" roughly translates to the fact that after the Feast of the Assumption of the Virgin Mary (August 15th), the forest becomes chillier. These types of truisms are well known to my grandmother, who often admonished that the first rain of August ushers in the winter. Of course, much of Italy remains very warm throughout August and into September and October, yet these aphorisms brim with the readiness and knowledge of a people aware that they must prepare their crops and livestock early in order to weather the difficult winter months.

So there you have it: a folkloristic compilation of feasts, holidays and proverbs relating to August. This cultural heritage can teach us a lot about how to enjoy this beautiful month. Let us revel in its warm weather and its sunflowers, in the last burst of summer before we step into our fall routines once again. Let us pay homage to harvest and prepare ourselves for whatever life has in store. These are the timeworn and much honored lessons of August, a month which even today bridges two seasons with abundance and a wealth of How's The Charlestown Bridge Going?

I cross back and forth the Charlestown Bridge construction project, you ask how's that proceeding? It sometimes depends on the day of the week. Lately it has been improving. If you're heading into town, you can now see the new temporary bridge rising up from the water facing the locks. It is going to be time consuming. The new bridge built between Weymouth and Quincy over the Fore River took as much as 15 or more years. However, it was a much larger project.

The current bridge has been around since 1898 and has been inoperable for so long, folks have forgotten if it is a drawbridge or a spinnaker bridge. Correct answer: it was only a drawbridge back in 1956 when Tony Curtis and Sal Mineo starred in Six Bridges to Cross. The new bridge will eventually be most likely a vertical lift bridge or if the powers that be were smart, they would just build it up a bit higher and fix it in place.

I still think it needs to be named after someone from

In a surprise Saturday morning (July 13th) visit, Red Sox wives Erin Bradley (Jackie Bradley, Jr.), Lakyn Holt (Brock Holt), Tiffany Price (David Price), and Theresa Simunovic (girlfriend of Colten Brewer), stopped by the Boston Health Care for the Homeless Program's HER Saturday Clinic to assist with the program's popular BINGO games, jewelry making, make-up, and art projects. They also handed out Red Sox hats, sunglasses, and flip-flops.

The two year-old HER (Health, Empowerment and Resources) Saturday Clinic is the Boston Health Care for the Homeless Program's only "women's only" clinic, gathering between 70-120 homeless women each week.

AND ... Speaking of Red Sox and the BHCHP... Don't forget the upcoming "Sox for Socks at Fenway Park" August 9th - 11th. If you plan to attend a game that weekend, please consider bringing new, white socks to any gate at Fenway Park. Look for the Sox for Socks volunteers just inside the gate!

MORE INFO ON THE "HER SATURDAY CLINIC"

Many homeless women avoid traditional clinics due to histories of domestic violence or fear of harassment. To bridge this gap, BHCHP will expand its successful HER Saturday (Health, Empowerment and Resources), a weekend clinic that provides a safe place for homeless women to receive medical and behavioral health care, health education, and opportunities to engage in enriching activities such as meditation, therapy dogs, and yoga. Since it was launched, this clinic has grown from serving 50 patients per week to averaging between 120-150 women. Many attendees have endured devastating trauma and exposure to threats and violence. This clinic not only serves as a trusted source of health care; it is also a refuge from the fears for their safety and a source of camaraderie.

Hot Weather Dogs - Tips for Keeping Your Canine Cool!

Whether fluffy or sleek, most dogs can be healthy and active in the heat, provided they get plenty of access to drinking water and shade. That said, certain dog breeds have a greater appreciation for hotter climates and all our pals could benefit from a little extra TLC in the summertime.

Tips For Keeping Cool Through the Dog Days of Summer:

- Offer an ice pack or wet towel to lay on
- Add ice cubes to the water
- Offer access to a wading pool with shallow, cool water
- · Offer access to cool shade by stringing up a tarp, cloth, or use a shade screen
- Bring a collapsible water dish on your walks
- Replace a portion of their regular diet with canned food
- · Avoid walking on hot pavement, and consider booties to insulate their toes
- Early morning or evening playtimes, exercise, and walks are best
- · Give your dog some homemade frozen treats

The best hot weather dog breeds: In general, dogs with thin, short coats-think: beagles, Chihuahuas, and Dalmatians are best in the heat. Dogs with short noses and thick coats are less comfortable as temperatures rise.

Dog breeds originating in hot climates were born ready to face the heat: Basenjis and pharaoh hounds, to name a few. High-speed hounds used for coursing and racing, mostly from the sight hound group, are all naturally gifted when it comes to beating the heat. Their long noses cool the air, and big lungs and hearts distribute oxygen through their bodies. Salukis, greyhounds and whippets are members of this speedy group.

Climate-sensitive breeds and conditions: While most any dog can tolerate the hot summer months with appropriate hydration and environment management, some dogs are just going to have a harder time. All snub-nosed or brachycephalic dogs have a harder time regulating their temperatures due to their shorter nasal passages. Bulldogs, pugs, and Boston terriers are more sensitive to rising temperatures. Other dogs that need special attention during a heat wave include giant dogs as well as elderly, obese, or diabetic animals.

Heatstroke in dogs: know the signs

- Raised temperature (101.5 is normal)
- Rapid breathing and panting
- · Excess salivation and thickened saliva
- Fatigue or depression
- Muscle tremors
- Staggering

If you spot these signs, get your dog inside and contact

Wrap your dog in cold wet towels, especially the underarm/ belly/groin area. A fan may be used on the dog during the cooling process.

Check your dog's temperature every five minutes and end the cooling treatment when the temperature is down to 103. Avoid cooling too rapidly to avoid shock. Allow access to cool water, but don't force your dog to drink. Your vet may push IV fluids if dehydration is a concern.

Dehydration in dogs: know the signs:

- Sunken eyes
- Lethargy
- Dry mouth
- Depression

Gently pinch a fold of skin at the top of the neck. Is it slow to snap back?

Not all signs of dehydration are easy to detect. If you suspect your dog may be dehydrated, a trip to the vet is recommended.

Offer clean cool water. Try different bowls, adding a splash of carrot juice, chicken broth, or pieces of a favorite fruit to one of the bowls to encourage drinking. Some dogs enjoy a few ice chips in their water dish.

To shave or not to shave ... Is that your question?

If your furry friend has a double coat like mastiffs, spitz, or terrier types, you may be tempted to simply shave off all that fuzz in hopes of keeping them cool. Before you break out the razor, you should know there can be several drawbacks to this solution, including a sudden lack of insulation and decreased sun protection. Additionally, because longer guard hairs have a different growth cycle than inner insulation hairs, it can take years for some dogs to regain their natural appearance. Additional reading:

North End Dodgers Travel to North Adams Mass For La Festa Baseball Exchange

by John Romano

For the 30th consecutive year a group of North End boys, ages 13 to 15 traveled to the western part of the state to North Adams, Mass. to play baseball. It all started in 1989 by a group of men from the North End and North Adams trying to find a way to connect the smallest city in the Commonwealth and the largest city in the Commonwealth. 2 of the men worked for then Secretary of Transportation Fred Salvucci, Mr. Joseph Sgarano of the North End and Toni Abusi of North Adams. Co-workers of sorts they got a group of people together to help out the small city of North Adams to put together a street festival, similar to our feasts in the North End. Once they had discussed that item, they decided to work something out to have the youth of both cities collaborate on something fun. So in June of 1989, we trekked out to the western part of the state to play baseball in the mountains. We had no idea what to expect. It seemed whenever a group of young men from the neighborhood traveled out of town to play, we lost and usually lost badly. Well, way before we even got to North Adams we were all winners before a ball was even thrown. John Fiumara and Joe Sgarano both of the Ausonia Council Knights of Columbus in the North End headed west out before us and had been interviewed on local radio, the local 9 were escorted through the street festival like visiting dignitaries. Manager Carl Ameno and GM John Romano could have easily been Terry Francona and Theo Ebstein it was a sight to be seen. When it was all over somehow the North End boys managed to win the game. After the game we did what all good Italians do, we ate together and celebrated a friendship that started that night and has lasted 30 years! As luck would have it, we were unable to reciprocate and have the North Adams team back to the North End that year, it was too short notice, the North End Knights were playing in 2 or 3 leagues and there just wasn't

With a whole year to plan, the next year officially started the LaFesta Baseball Exchange between sister cities from opposite ends of the state. This past weekend we traveled out west for the 29th Exchange but thirtieth trip. This weekend was not so good on the scoreboard for the local boys but the fun, sportsmanship, friendship and the legacy of the Exchange was all that mattered! With the team made up of many 13-year-olds, they put up a great fight but eventually lost both games to the older and more experienced a good time or place to accommodate another game.

We wish to thank the Canales Family: George and his wife Nancy, their sons Michael, David, Jason along with their wives Kate, Dawn, and Jill along with Toni Abusi, John Lipa and a whole host of others whose hospitality was second to none this weekend! Hats off to Kevin H and George the Umpire who has volunteered for all 29 years, as well as North Adams Coach Tito. Thank you also goes out to North Adams Mayor Tom Bernard, who threw out the First Pitch of Saturday Night's Game. A tip of the hat also goes to North End Coaches Joseph Bova and Ralph Martignetti.

ALL THAT ZAZZ

by Mary N. DiZazzo

To Keratin or Not to Keratin ... That is the Question?

Ciao Bella,

I've been in a quandary this month on whether to Keratin my locks or not. Finding the right salon is dizzying! The Keratin application is quite marvelous as it tames the hair like an unruly classroom! It makes the cuticle of your hair lie flat without all the Frizz that we all dread. Who can live with smoother hair that is more manageable, is damaged repaired and noticeably softer? I can. It can leave your locks very straight or depending on the Keratin formula used by your professional, leave it with a bend/curl. My Mom would have adored this treatment as her hair was actually kinky. Let's not forget about the amazing Shine the Keratin treatment performs on the hair!

As summer approached my hair became quite dry and unruly. After all it had been over one year since I had my Keratin done at my salon where I worked. My Keratin lasts since I shampoo only once a week which is plenty for me.

Being a licensed cosmetologist there are perks. One is being able to purchase professional products from suppliers.

Many months ago I bought a professional Keratin treatment. Once I read the directions I fully realized it would be too difficult for me to do solo. So my husband David offered to help. We shall now call him "Monsieur Davide!"

He performed a rocking Keratin treatment on my locks and I'm in my glory!

I mean there are so many salons near me offering the Keratin service even with Groupon discounts. However, I've had my share of bad salon experiences!

I just colored my hair and styled it straight. I am one happy gal! The Keratin tamed down the hair to give it life, body and shine! Hope it lasts! Time will tell!

Buona Giornata and God Bless the USA!

BRIAN ENO-APOLLO: ATMOSPHERES & SOUNDTRACKS (2LP Vinyl) UMe

Apollo: Atmospheres & Soundtracks — Extended Edition, was written, produced and performed by Brian Eno together with his brother Roger and Daniel Lanois. The music was originally recorded in 1983 for the landmark feature-length documentary For All Mankind. The film features 35mm footage of the Apollo 11 moon landing with real-time commentary, as well as the Apollo astronauts sharing their recollections of the momentous events surrounding it. This extended edition of the album was released in celebration of the 50th Anniversary of the Apollo 11 moon landing. This very special anniversary release features the original album re-mastered, as well as an accompanying album of 11 new instrumental compositions that re-imagine the soundtrack to For All Mankind. The music from the original album is highly recognizable, and tracks from it have found a life of their own, featuring in any number of films, television shows and commercials - most notably "Trainspotting," "Traffic," "28 Days Later," "Drive" and "Love." "An Ending (Ascent)" was used in the 2012 London Olympics opening ceremony. The 11 new tracks on Apollo: Atmospheres & Soundtracks find Brian Eno, Lanois and Roger Eno working collectively for the first time since the original album in 1983. Lanois contributed 3 compositions; "Capsule," "Last Step From The Surface" and "Fine-grained," while Roger Eno's are "Waking Up," "Under The Moon" and "Strange Quiet." A whole disc of new music, plus Eno's seminal original album re-mastered.

SCREAM + SCREAM 2 MOTION PICTURE SOUNDTRACKS -MARCO BELTRAMI (2LP Vinyl)

Varése Sarabande If you were asked ... What's your favorite scary movie? The answer would likely be the movies Scream and Scream2. After two previous editions sold out. the soundtracks to Scream and Scream 2 are being released together again as a single LP, this time on red vinyl. The package features bespoke imagery on the jacket and labels from noted illustrator, "Ghoulish" Gary Pullin. The Scream films have grossed over 600 million dollars in total, which make it one of the most successful horror franchises in cinematic history. New York native Marco Beltrami is a film and television composer and conductor, whose career spans 25 years, and until recently was best known for his work scoring horror films such as Mimic, The Faculty, Resident Evil, Don't Be Afraid of the Dark and The Woman in Black. A long-time friend and collaborator of Wes Craven, Beltrami scored seven of the director's films including all four films in the Scream franchise. The half-dozen tracks from Scream are, "Sydney's Lament," "Altered Ego," "Trouble in Woodsboro," "A Cruel World," "Chasing Sydney" and "NC-17."

Scream 2 includes, "Stage Fright Requiem," "Love Turns Sour," "Hollow Parting," "Dewpoint and Stabbed," "Hairtrigger Lunatic," and "It's Over, Sid."

THE ROOTS -THE TIPPING POINT (2LP Vinyl) Geffen-Urban Legends

In honor of its 15th anniversary, The Roots' legendary sixth album The Tipping Point is available once again via Geffen/ Urban Legends. The amalgam of hip-hop, soul and funk, originally released in 2004, has been reissued on vinyl. The Tipping Point, named after Malcolm Gladwell's 2000 pop-sociology classic in which he explored how minor movements and behaviors can proliferate, was where the Roots really honed their sound and messaging. The Philadelphia rap crew, led by MC Tariq "Black Thought" Trotter and drummer Ahmir "Questlove" Thompson, was at a crossroad. On highlights like "Star," "Don't Say Nuthin'" and "Guns Are Drawn," the Roots did what they do best: blending multifarious influences from soul, funk and jazz music, funneled through a canny social conscience and kinetic musicians: bassists Adam Blackstone and Leonard "Hub" Hubbard, guitarists Anthony Tidd, "Captain" Kirk Douglas and Martin Luther, keyboardists Kamal and Omar Edwards. The album samples Sly & the Family Stone ("Everybody is a Star" on "Star"), Al Hirt ("Harlem Hendoo" on "Stay Cool") and the Rimshots ("Dance Girl" on "Web"). A great revisit to this legendary chapter in The Roots' history company.

CARLITO'S WAY -ORIGINAL MOTION PICTURE SOUNDTRACK -PATRICK DOYLE (2LP Vinyl) Varése Sarabande

Brian De Palma's film Carlito's Way, is released for the first time on vinyl, and limited to 1000copies, available exclusively through Barnes and Noble. Carlito Brigante is released from jail and vows to go straight and to live life as a fine, upstanding citizen. Carlito's associates cannot seem to leave him in peace; his nephew involves him a pool-room gunfight, his lawyer asks him for "favors" which spiral out of control, and even an old friend tries to get him into trouble with the law. He decides to make a run for Florida and a new life. "I am extremely fortunate and proud to have composed the score for Carlito's Way for Brian de Palma. I recognized the moment I first saw the film that it was a masterpiece and time has indeed confirmed this. Every new generation discovers Carlito's Way and the enthusiasm and appreciation over the years for the film, for the score and for the work of all the other departments. This film has become a classic and to have my score be part of it is a tremendous honor" stated composer Patrick Dovle. Tracks include, "Carlito's Way," "Carlito And Gail," "The Café," "Laline," "You're Over, Man," "Where's My Cheesecake?" and "The Buoy." Flip side vinyl has, "The Elevator," "There's An Angle Here," the lengthy "Grand Central" and "Remember Me."

KEVIN McCREA'S PASSING A LOSS TO CITY

A local political provocateur who loved reaching for headlines with antics intended to draw attention to important governmental issues passed away of a heart attack last week at age 52. He had run for both Mayor and City Council in the recent past. The last time I saw him on the campaign trail was during the last city council race in 2017. I was driving down Washington Street in Jamaica Plain and outside Doyle's I spotted the red clown car he drove in that campaign.

Kevin was dressed like a clown with red nose and all. He had legalized his name as "Pat Payaso" for his council bid.

Listen while many others and I have often thought about how many politicians turned into clowns once elected, I was not ready to vote an actual clown into office. But I loved his gimmick.

At Doyle's that day was Althea Garrison also having lunch and when I asked if I could take her photo with the Payaso, she told me she didn't want to take a photo with a clown.

Last week I was over in Southie at the official opening of the Michael F. Flaherty Campaign Re-election Office on East Broadway. Helping making the event fun-filled was Mo Nahas also from Southie with his vintage 1950s Vespa ice cream motor bike passing out plenty of LEMON slush and ice cream, too!

WHILE CROSSING OVER CHARLESTOWN BRIDGE

The other afternoon I was crossing over the Charlestown Bridge heading to Thompson Square when I passed by the site below of what used to be a long shuttered warehouse built on a pier now replaced by a marina and I remembered a friend of mine BFD Lt. Steve Minehan who perished in that 9-alarm fire looking for two missing firefighters. The 25th anniversary of that fire was this past June 24th.

I remember crossing this bridge later that evening 25 years ago and thinking WHY? We never get to understand the many whys that pass through the years of our lives, do we? If my Mom had been alive at that time, she would have just said, 'When it's our time, it's our time."

GOOD OLD ROCK AND ROLL

I have seen many great shows at the Lynn Auditorium over the years and I just found out there are two shows coming up that sound super. On September 21st, The Association, The Grass Roots and The Box Tops will all be on stage. If you are a baby boomer like me, this is your

Also, if you are into R&B, you don't want to miss the one and only Gladys Knight. She'll be on stage August 25th. Remember earlier this year at the Super Bowl. She still sings like back when she was with the Pips.

ALL POLITICS IS LOCAL

Too often we have politicians who think they are the greatest thing since sliced bread but as the legendary U.S. Speaker of the House Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr. always said, "all politics is local!"

I recently saw a news story in the Revere Advocate the headline "Beachmont councilor thanks Speaker DeLeo for 27 streetlight repairs." Isn't that what politics is always about?

BIKERS AGAINST CHILD ABUSE HOSTING TOUCH-A-TRUCK EVENT

On Saturday, August 12th, Bikers Against Child Abuse and Boston Harley-Davidson will be holding a Touch-a-Truck event. It's all free and plenty of trucks for the kids to see up close and Everything will be held at the Harley Davidson on Squire Road in Revere.

TONY MAFFEI STILL REMEMBERED

Tony Maffei is still remembered over at the Dunkin' Donuts up in the Heights where he could usually be found with all the "Knights of Dunkin' Donuts." Back in 2012, I worked sideby-side with Tony in the U.S. Senate race for a guy named Gomez who was taken down at the polls by a former ice cream truck driver named Eddie Markey which by itself proved if you hang around in politics even an ice cream guy can go to Washington over and over again.

THOUGHTS BY DAN ABOUT THIS & THAT

with Daniel A. DiCenso

What Happened to the Art of Debate?

Those used to be smear words, hurdled by opponents who knew it wasn't a true accusation. Now, we have entered an era of easy labels which, ultimately, has simplified politics. No wonder, discourse has been reduced to, "Believe exactly that x is y is or you're a dirty ... (fill in the blank)."

In part, this is human nature. We often seek to understand both are compatriots and our foes alike in absolute terms. The reality, though, is that people are complicated. No two set of views will ever be alike. Can anyone think of any politician they supported with whom they're views have aligned without the slightest deviation? Our take on each issue is determined by an array of factors, mostly involving personal experience and upbringing. Hence, not all Democrats align and not all Republicans think alike. Do we really want them to? Aren't the variants what ultimately makes the one candidate stand out to you?

Like the people who hold them, political positions cannot be reduced to right or wrong answers. Issues are complicated, multi-layered and require discussion beyond easy labels. But look at the state we are in.

Try explaining to a liberal the potential pitfalls of raising the minimum wage and you are a capitalist pig; argue to a conservative that it's an outrage that in one of the richest nations in the world some citizens can't afford to get sick and you are one of those that wants something for nothing.

our border and why, you are a racist. Tell a MeToo activist that while every claim of rape should be taken seriously and heard it is important to verify all the facts before destroying someone's career and you are no better than a serial rapist, your own name to be dragged through the mud. Of course, you will fare little better when you try to tell a Republican that the accusations against Roger Ailes and Bill O'Reilly were credible.

No liberals, believing that in certain instances a police officer was justified in firing their gun does not make someone a racist. No, conservatives Black Lives Matter is not a Black supremacist organization and you'd have to be grammatically inept to read Black Lives Matter as Only Black Lives Matter.

Liberals, thinking it is a completely ludicrous idea to remove the songs, statues, names, and tributes to anyone who at any point in their life said something "controversial" does not make you insensitive. Conservatives, expecting the removal of Confederate flags and tributes to its Confederate soldiers from public spaces and government buildings is not the stance of a snowflake wanting to erase history. Maybe it's the stance of a patriot offended by the glorification of traitors and treasons armies.

What I am calling for is a return to reasonable debate. Debating is not easy. It is often laborious and exhausting. Debating requires time, research and civil exchange. Name calling, easy labels, and the futile quest for clear-cut answers may just be the reason political discourse has crumbled.

Nanna & Babbononno

by John Christoforo

A Nostalgic Remembrance

Today, everything is disposable. You name the object, and when it wears out we get rid of it. As a matter of fact, it is often cheaper to get rid of something that needs fixing than to repair it. Let me give you an example. I have to dress up quite a bit. That means I'm in a shirt and tie more often than not. If my shirt cuffs or the collar gets frayed, the shirt becomes a cleaning cloth for one of the cars. If the elbows on a suit jacket become ragged, you have two options, the Good Will bag or put leather patches on them. Cobblers are almost out of business. I'm told that it is cheaper to buy a new pair of shoes rather than to have new soles and heels put on. It wasn't always like this.

When Nanna and Babbononno were young, nothing went to waste. When refrigerators became popular, the ice box made its way to the cellar and was used to keep my grandfather's beer and wine cool. When the kitchen set had to be replaced with a newer one, the old one found its way to the cellar to be used to eat on in the warm weather. At that point, the kitchen set that had been in the cellar made its way to the back yard and served as a picnic table, or to hold Babbononno's tools when he was working outside.

Back in the day, Brioschi came in a round can with a lid that had to be pried open with a bottle opener or a screw driver. There must have been at least a dozen cans in my grandparents' cellar with nails, screws, washers, bolts, carpet tacks, and anything else that my grandfather wanted to save that would fit in the can. The same was true with the small can that Sucrettes came in. (If you've never seen one, it's about the size of the tin can that Altoid breath mints come in.) Nanna used them to hold needles, common pins odd buttons and maybe another might be filled with pennies.

My grandfather used to dress at night. He was a musician and musicians dressed back in the day ... suit and tie. When the cuffs or collar wore out, he handed the shirt to Nanna and she would turn the frayed collar or cuffs over or inside out, whatever would work and that would give the shirt a second life.

Babbononno had a brown fedora. Over the years, he wore it whenever he went out until sweat stains were visible, but the hat was never out of his possession. It was left in the cellar and worn when he worked in the garden beginning in the spring. It was replaced by a new fedora that could be worn with a suit and tie. Thinking of ties, if I get a gravy stain or salad oil stain on a tie, I swear under my breath, throw the tie out and wear another one that compliments my suit. Back in Babbononno's day, the tie could be cleaned with one of Nanna's solvents, and no one would know the difference.

Nothing was ever thrown out. The cellar contained everything that had seen its day or could be used again. As an example, there were empty gallon jugs and several whiskey bottles on a shelf in the cellar. When I asked Babbononno why he kept them, he always said, "Wenna I go a la houza di Zi'Antonio eh buy da wine, maybe heeza no gudda bottles wadda use foh da wine, capice?" Every time Dad or one of my uncles would take Babbononno to Zi Antonio's, he brought an assortment of these bottles to fill, just in case.

I guess that their way was part and parcel of being born poor in Italy and living through a depression in this country. Even Dad had his frugal side, again, the result of a depression. When I was a child, he owned a 1937 Plymouth. Whenever he would find a dent in one of the fenders, he would get out a ball peen hammer and a block of wood and take the dent out himself. I remember an incident when I was a still in short pants. The right front fender split open over the center of the wheel. The next day, Dad and Babbononno were at the curb with a blow torch and a bar of solder fixing the problem. When the handle and lock broke off the trunk door, the door was taped shut so it wouldn't flap around when Dad drove. That car made it to 1949, and when my father got rid of it, the only thing still working in it was the driver.

I remember a blouse that Nanna had. It had been washed too many times and it was faded. The next thing I knew, it was soaking in a basin in the kitchen sink. The basin was filled with hot water and blue dve. Nanna's faded blouse lasted quite a bit longer, only it was now powder blue. She was happy when everyone admired what they thought was a new blouse.

If a cup or dish became chipped, it remained in the cabinet above the kitchen sink. They were used when we were alone. The good ones came out when we had company or on Sunday afternoons when the family came to dinner. Let's see what else was there ... Orange or tangerine rinds weren't thrown out. They were placed on top of the old black iron stove. The heat would make the smell sweeten the kitchen. During the cold dry days of winter, a pan of warm

Tara E. DeCristofaro, Register of Probate Run Date: 8/2/19 water sat on the same stove and as the water evaporated, it became a humidifier. Old automobile tires were still used once they were old or beyond repair. Babbononno and some of the old timers used to turn them inside out, paint them white, sink them about half way in the dirt of the back yard and grown something in the opening. Babbononno grew flowers because Nanna liked flowers. If you asked him, though, he thought flowers were useless. He would say that if you can't eat what you plant, what good is it. If a package came to the house and it was wrapped with twine or rope, both of those fasteners were saved, just in case. Babbononno had a tin can in the cellar with pieces of both cut to various lengths. When he planted his tomatoes, the rope and twine were used to hold the vines to the stakes stuck in the ground. Oh, by the way, the stakes were pieces of scrap wood slivered vertically. It worked.

Old pants, shoes, sweaters were never discarded. They could be worn when making repairs or painting a room. If they got dirty, they were washed. If they became paint stained, they stayed in the closet until it was time to paint something else.

There were things that had to go, things that were classified as junk. Babbononno would wait until he heard the clip clop of a horse coming up Eutaw Street pulling a junk wagon.

Chelsea was filled with junk yards and workers rode the wagons through the streets of Eastie yelling, "Any old rags; any old junk." Babbononno would stop them, bring out what Nanna forced him to discard and he and the driver would bargain over the price. Babbononno was happy with the money he made, but sad to see something go that he might be able to someday use again. That's the way it was before life was filled with disposables.

What is Wrong With Markey?

After watching and listening to Robert Mueller and his words, it is clear the Democrats had a bad day on Capitol Hill however, liberal Democrats must have all stuffed cotton in their ears because the case for impeachment was circling the toilet bowl.

However, it hasn't caused U.S. Sen. Ed Markey to come to his senses. He is now calling on the House to start impeachment proceedings. Obviously, Markey's re-election bid is making him do crazy things. When you have two more liberal opponents in the upcoming primary next year, Markey has to appear to be an A.O.C. Democrat. He isn't. After all these years in Congress, I still don't know who he is.

As of late, the most dependable starter in the Red Sox rotation has been Eduardo Rodriguez. He has been pretty consistent lately. He's tied in wins (13) and has more strikeouts than innings pitched. The patience the Sox have long had with him, which was not often easy, seems to be paying off.

Growing Up In The Late 50S And 60S, The Red Sox Were The Real "White" Sox

The Boston Red Sox are still living down their seemingly racist past. I was 10 years old before the Red Sox signed their first black player, an infielder names Pumpsie Green. He played for the Sox five seasons. Nothing special on the field or at bat. No Jackie Robinson. I think the Sox were forced to bring him up because they were the last all-white team in major league history. A sorry &%$# record to hold. I like Pumpsie because of all he had to go through.

The more I read about Tom Yawkey, the less I like him. Green came up to the Red Sox on June 21, 1959 a few weeks after my 11th birthday. I just read a great piece on this era in Boston baseball history by Dick Flavin on the Pilot sports page. Yes this paper does sports too.

Flavin talked about another Black player the Red Sox almost brought up in 1950 but didn't. What was his name? You can cheat and look it up or you can just wait for next week right

HOOPS and HOCKEY in the HUB

by Richard Preiss

Later there was a NBA Championship.

For as the heat of July crossed over into August, Jeremy Lin the Harvard graduate who once took New York by storm while playing for the Knicks remained on the open market as NBA free agency entered its second month.

He's now 30 and seven years removed from those wondrous months in 2012 when all of the Big Apple was enthralled by his performances at Madison Square Garden.

Fast forward to the present and it is Jeremy Lin who seeks employment as an NBA player, having previously secured a roster position on eight NBA teams. Should some franchise pick him up, it would be his ninth stop in the 30-team league.

Now a millionaire many times over and thus much wealthier than the vast majority of his fellow Harvard graduates from the class of 2010, Lin questions his future in the league that enabled him to propel his popularity and provided him with multi-million dollar salaries that have virtually guaranteed his financial security for life. In 2016, he donated $1 million to Harvard.

To be sure, Lin is not ungrateful, just wondering whether he will ever again take the floor for an NBA game. It is particularly frustrating since his most recent experience was winning the 2019 NBA Championship as a bench player with the Toronto Raptors after joining the team for the final two months of the regular season and the playoffs.

Every year it gets harder," noted Lin in a piece published on NBA.com. "There's a saying that once you hit rock bottom the only way is up. But rock bottom has been getting more and more rock bottom for me. Free agency has been tough. I feel like in some ways the NBA has kind of given up on me."

But Lin's life, to a certain degree, has always had those moments. Even though he led his high school team to a California Division 2 state championship, all the big basketball schools that offer athletic scholarships passed on him.

A good student academically, he then went to Harvard where he played all full four years, graduating with a degree in economics that capped a career that saw him post stats of 1,483 points, 450 rebounds, 400 assists and 400 steals.

Then came a big letdown. He was not selected by any team in the 2010 NBA draft.

But Donnie Nelson, the adult son of former Celtics star Don Nelson, saw something that others did not. Then working as an assistant GM for the Dallas Mavericks, he invited Lin to a mini-camp. That enabled Lin to earn a spot on the Mavs team that competed in the NBA Summer League. The Golden State Warriors like how he performed and offered him a two-year deal with a first year salary of close to $500.000. He could have signed with the Mavs but preferred to go with the Warriors — his "hometown" team in California.

Just a couple of months following graduation day, the economics major had scored big in a financial sense. After all, how many of his classmates had been offered a salary of $500,000 right out of college?

Lin spent most of his time during the 2010-20111 season with Reno in the NBA Development league, appearing in only 29 games with the Warriors.

The first half of the 2011-2012 season brought a leaguewide lockout. The Warriors changed coaches during the shutdown, showing the door to Keith Smart and bringing aboard Mark Jackson.

Lin was waived before the abbreviated season began then picked up briefly by Houston where he played two pre-season games before being sent to the New York Knicks.

It was there that he would make his mark. After the Knicks went on a losing streak that saw them lose 11 of 13 games coach Mike D'Antoni did what many other coaches have done in a similar situation

He essentially said "Why not?" and began to play Lin regularly. The Knicks went on to a 6-0 winning streak during the first six games Lin started and owned a 9-3 mark in Lin's 12 starts prior to the All-Star break. New York had risen above .500 in the standings. Lin was averaging 22.5 points per game and 8.7 assists.

Linsanity was off and running and was fantastic while it lasted. An injury in late March shelved Lin for the final three weeks of the regular season, curtailing his success after just 26 games. The Knicks did make the playoffs but were eliminated in the first round.

All the fans, of course, wanted the one that the New York Times called "the most popular player in a decade" brought back for the 2012-2013 season. But a three-year $25 million offer from Houston made Lin a member of the Rockets and a new addition to Houston coach (and former Celtics star) Kevin McHale's roster.

Timing is everything. Lin was not the only new arrival. Another was James Harden, a player destined to become a superstar and one who quickly became the face of the franchise.

Over the next several seasons Lin would bounce from team to team — from Houston, to Brooklyn to Atlanta and finally Toronto.

Some nights he would start, on others he would be relegated to a bench. And it seemed that wherever he went, injuries were always a portion of the picture.

His biggest deal: Some $36 million as part of a three year package at Brooklyn (he only played two there). Like we said, set for life.

Whether Jeremy Lin's career on the court has concluded or still has another chapter or two remains to be seen. However, with his bright financial situation, his Harvard degree and his extensive knowledge of basketball, we have a feeling that there is a rather high probability that Jeremy Lin will be around the game in some capacity for a very long time.
